

Allies Slowed As Reds Fight Harder

B-29s Fight Off Attack By Jets
Downing Two, Completing Mission

TOKYO (AP)—Communist troops fighting with renewed fury halted Allied advances today 13 miles from the Communist Korean strongholds of Chorwon and Kumhwa.

Other United Nations forces regained control of the 275-foot high Hwachon dam with comparative ease.

Across the 125-mile Korean front, Allied forces slogged through the mud for slow gains or fought off sharp attacks.

Twelve Red jets tried an attack on U.S. B-29 Superforts. Eight F-86 Sabre jets cut in with the usual result—two Russian-type jets downed and one damaged. The B-29s, unarmed, went ahead with their bomb runs on a north-west Korea rail bridge.

The stiffest fighting swirled against American spearheads on the western and west-central fronts pointed at Chorwon, and around Inje on the east-central sector.

YANKS PUSHED BACK

Chinese units pitched a fantastic counter-attack at dusk Wednesday against Americans in the hills around Yonchon, 13 miles southwest of Chorwon. In a night-long battle the Reds pushed the doughboys off the ridges and shoved them back 1,000 yards.

At dawn Thursday the Americans leaped to the attack. By noon they had regained their positions on the road to Chorwon.

Front-line officers estimated at least two Chinese divisions stood between the Americans and that Red stronghold, 60 miles north of Seoul.

Yonchon itself, said AP correspondent John Randolph, is a no-man's-land. Americans patrol it by day. Chinese by night.

The Chinese started their first spring offensive prematurely April 22 to keep the Allies away from Chorwon. At that time U.N. forces were four miles away.

INVITE ATTACK

One of the announced objectives of the current allied counter-offensive is to force the Reds into another premature attack.

During such offensives the Chinese have been cut down in the greatest numbers.

South Koreans had to fight to enlarge their crossings of the Imjin River, southwest of the Yonchon action. Heretofore they had faced comparatively light opposition in advances south of the 38th Parallel.

Just north of the border American troops were forced to withdraw Wednesday from positions near Yonpyong under heavy fire. The highway town is in the sector between Yonchon and Chipo, and about 10 miles to the rear.

Elsewhere on the west-central front an allied tank patrol near Yonpyong pulled back from strong Red artillery fire.

Four other members of the party were on the bank helping to "winch" the boat along the shoreline near the river's mouth.

Humble's body has not been recovered. The survey party was conducting a long-term study of the entire Fraser River basin.

The missing boy, with one year to go to a chemical engineering degree, had spent the last two summers on survey work in the area, and this year was employed as instrument man. He left Victoria May 14.

He was educated at Glenlyon School and Oak Bay High School. His father retired as assistant at Dominion Meteorological Observatory last October, and Mrs. Humble is superintendent of Oak Bay Nursing Division of St. John Ambulance Association.

Acquit Bohm Of Contempt

WASHINGTON (UP)—Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff today acquitted atomic scientist David J. Bohm of a charge of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

In making the decision, Holtzoff suggested that Congress enact a law to provide immunity from prosecution for witnesses who otherwise might keep silent for fear of incriminating themselves. Like 13 others, Bohm took refuge in his constitutional right to refuse to answer questions on grounds he might expose himself to prosecution.

He balked at committee questions about the case of "Scientist X" and alleged passing of atomic secrets to Russia through a Communist cell.

COUNTER SPIES AT WORK HERE

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's armed services are doing counter-espionage work in this country, the Commons public accounts committee heard today.

That's practically all they heard on the hush-hush topic, in a brief and guarded reference to it by Alex Ross, associate Deputy Minister of National Defence, as the committee studied defence spending.

Supersonic Missile Roars Skyward

One of United States' newest anti-aircraft guided missiles roars upward at supersonic speed out of a cloud of exhaust gases during recent firing test. CANADIAN BRIGADE NOW KOREAN FIGHTING UNIT

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 25th Infantry Brigade is now fighting as a unit in Korea under Brig. M. Rockingham, defence headquarters said today.

The newly-arrived units of the brigade, which have been in the fighting line since last Friday, were joined by the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, two days ago, according to word reaching here.

Previously, the Patricia's fought as part of the 28th Commonwealth Brigade.

H. E. KER SURPRISE COUNCIL NOMINEE

Late Entry Promises Three-Way
Struggle In Civic By-Election

A dark horse entry and a possible last-minute withdrawal were seen today as nominations neared a close for the forthcoming civic by-election for alderman June 7.

Harold E. Ker was the late entry. Philip B. Freeman, auctioneer, who earlier this week indicated he would run, had not taken out papers up to 12 noon today. The papers must be taken, filled out and filed before 2.

If Mr. Freeman does not run, it will be a three-way contest with Arthur H. Dowell, 1922 Fairfield Road, president of Dowell's Cartage & Storage Co.; William H. Williams, 2912 Quadra, owner-operator of Merchants' Transfer; and Mr. Ker, 1744 Duchess, owner of Ker Electric Ltd.

Mr. Ker and Mr. Williams have both run for council before.

Says Russians May Call Off War In Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—Admiral Forrest P. Sherman said today Russia could call off the war in Korea at any time and may be inclined to do so as the United States becomes stronger.

Sherman, the Chief of Naval Operations, gave those views in response to questions at the Senate inquiry into the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

He also testified:

1. In the early days of last December, the U.S. Defence Department felt that the Korean fighting might explode into a world war.

2. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff who was then in Tokyo, messaged the Joint Chiefs of Staff on Dec. 4 that MacArthur "feels best solution would be to arrange armistice on best terms available as soon as possible."

3. Collins reported on his return that MacArthur—as of Dec. 7—felt it would "represent essentially a surrender" if restrictions on his command prohibited: air action against Red China; a naval blockade of China; and reinforcement "of forces in Korea from Nationalist China."

The last was a reference to the Formosa-based forces of Chiang Kai-shek.

Sherman's suggestion that Russia may be inclined to call off the war as the U.S. grows stronger, came in an exchange with Senator Henry C. Lodge (Rep., Mass.).

Lodge observed that the U.S. is not "sufficiently strong at the present time to put such pressure on the Kremlin."

"I don't think we are sufficiently strong to make it effective now," Sherman said.

Sherman said the military situation in Korea was regarded in December as gloomy by both Washington and Tokyo, and the joint chiefs had messaged MacArthur they were "forced to conclude that evacuation is a possibility."

This was at the low point of United Nations strength, after U.N. troops had been thrown back by the surprise intervention of the Chinese Communists.

3 Die As Train Crashes Bridge

WOODBINE, Ia. (CP)—An Illinois Central Railroad freight train plunged through a flood-weakened trestle early today. Three crew members trapped in the steam locomotive were listed as "undoubtedly dead."

Fifteen loaded freight cars of the Chicago-bound freight piled up on the locomotive, smashing it and burying the men.

A depot agent said it might be late in the day before it could be definitely established whether any of the three were alive.

Blazing Shaft Traps 14 In German Mine

HAMM, HERRINGEN, Germany. (AP)—An explosion trapped 14 German miners early today in a blazing mine shaft. Rescue workers abandoned all hope of getting any of the men out alive. Twenty miners were saved, four of them critically injured.

It was the second European coal mine disaster of the week. Hope was abandoned Wednesday for 62 British coal miners trapped 900 feet below ground at Easington, Durham, England. The Easington death toll was 81.

The doom of the German miners was evident when officials ordered the blazing shaft sealed off, to prevent the fire from spreading and destroying the entire mine.

The miners were, entombed 3,000 feet below ground at the mine—the Heinrich-Robert—when an explosion touched off a fire in a conveyor belt which ignited coal dust. The flames soon were roaring through the shaft. The explosion occurred at 2:15 a.m. (9:15 p.m. E.D.T. Wednesday), and by noon the 14 trapped men were given up for lost.

Violence Quelled At Melbourne Dock

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Police rushed to the Melbourne docks today to quell a clash among Maltese, waiting for immigrant friends, and Australian customs officers.

Three customs officers and two Maltese were injured and five Maltese arrested.

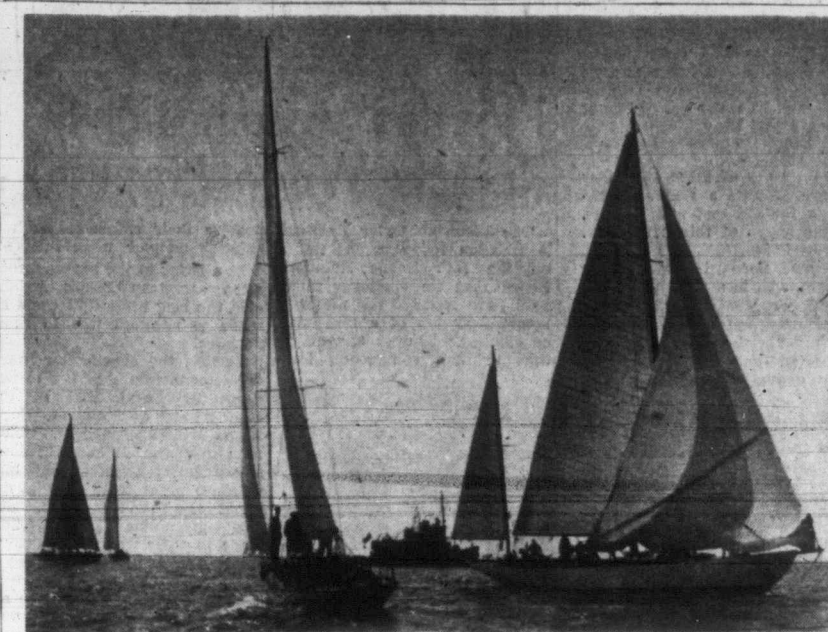

Two hundred Maltese had waited four hours for the berthing of the 7,821-ton Florentia, bringing their friends. One of the immigrants rushed off and tried to hide in a crowd of his countrymen when customs officers were examining his baggage. He was caught and the trouble broke out when they tried to bring him back to the customs bay.

Teen-Agers Found

SEATTLE (AP)—Five high school girls who spent Wednesday night on Mount Si after getting lost on a hike were found safe today.

The girls, tired but unhurt, said they slept between fallen trees beside a creek near the base of the mountain. Mount Si is near North Bend, about 30 miles east of here.

Major Yacht Race Starts Off Victoria

A sight to stir the emotions of old-time sailors was to be seen off Brothie Ledge this morning as 13 sailing ships lined up for annual race to Swiftsure Lightship, off Cape Flattery. Hearty wishes and good-natured jibes were exchanged by crews of Amorita, left, and Maruffa, right, as they passed just prior to start of classic race. Navy tug Glendevon is seen between them. Boats got off to a good start when signal gun was fired. (See story page 13.)

Point Ellice Bridge Issue Flares Again As R. H. B. Ker Asks Report

Proposed new Point Ellice Bridge issue was split wide open today by R. H. B. Ker, well-known city business man, who called on City Council to provide "an authoritative and qualified report as to whether a new bridge is justified—definitely 'yes' or 'no'."

His letter addressed to the mayor and council will go before the regular council meeting Tuesday.

The bridge question was brought up six weeks before the last civic elections and with delays to date has all the earmarks of shaping up into a "hot" issue in the 1951 mayoralty election.

Mr. Ker wrote:

"For the past several years the citizens of this community have been fed up with propaganda about the dangerous condition of the present Point Ellice Bridge to the point where probably you assume that the taxpayers will be found ready and willing to finance a new bridge to replace the existing structure."

"Before this can be accepted the taxpayers will surely require authoritative and definite recommendation and report from more than one qualified bridge engineer."

Mr. Ker referred to a report that easing of the present 10-mile-per-hour speed limit was being studied; that the city engineer had not noted any signs of permanent injury to the bridge; that "in spite of a load limit, no check has been made of loads being transported across the bridge."

"Has the present supposed condition of the bridge come about through neglect, or if not, through age, which is surprising in a first class steel bridge?" queried Mr. Ker.

He continued: "And if there is to be a load limit, why is it not properly checked and enforced?"

"For a very small fraction of the total carrying charges on the cost of a new bridge, an inspector could be stationed at the present bridge to turn back traffic that, in his opinion, exceeded the safe permissible weight."

"This traffic could still use the Johnson Street Bridge or else take a longer route round by the Gorge Road and the Gorge Bridge at the Narrows."

"That might entail a new bridge at the Gorge to carry a greater load or else the alternative of another bridge across the Gorge Narrows, either one of which would probably be far less costly than replacing the present Point Ellice Bridge which evidently is perfectly safe for ordinary car traffic and light trucks."

British-Iran Oil Tangle Snarled Worse Than Ever

TEHRAN (AP)—Iran's critical oil dispute snarled itself into a still tighter knot today as the Government told Britain it plans to go ahead with nationalization of its giant British-controlled oil industry at once.

It gave the Anglo-Iranian Company five days to make any suggestions.

A memorandum to the oil company Wednesday night left little hope of any solution to the problem, in the opinion of British observers here.

The memorandum was handed the oil company's local representative, N. R. Seddon, by Finance Minister Mohammed Ali Vazirani at the first meeting of a company official and a government minister since Iran passed the nationalization law a month ago.

The note, outlining "regulations for execution" of the nationalization law, said a national government board was going to Khuzistan province, site of Anglo-Iranian's operations, to run the nationalized industry.

An unconfirmed report in top diplomatic circles said National Economy Minister Amir Aial would be chairman of the commission and that the group would go to Khuzistan within the next five days.

Observers noted the memorandum specified that all employees of the "former oil company" would "from this date (Wednesday)" be recognized as employees of the Iranian National Oil Company—a government body.

Apparently Iran recognizes Wednesday as the date of the turnover.

Meanwhile, British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd protested strongly against the 24-hour notice expulsion orders served yesterday on two British journalists in Tehran.

He made a personal call on Foreign Minister Baqir Kazemi to lodge the protest.

Bradley To Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley, the Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman, will personally poll opinions and intentions among the top military leaders in Western Europe on the trip he starts tomorrow. His poll will cover Americans and Allies alike.

Thorny problems have developed in recent months. Although some of them are essentially diplomatic, they also have such strong military complications as to be of direct concern to the planning of the uniformed chiefs.

Two Gunmen Loot Cafe In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Two youthful gunmen escaped with $1,200 in cash and $1,300 worth of street-car tickets today after holding up a St. Lawrence Boulevard restaurant owner.

Antonio Bancamano told police they ordered him to open his safe at gunpoint.

Recover Body

Naval divers from Victoria late Wednesday recovered the body of Emanuel S. Hein, 35, of Courtenay, and the jeep he was driving Monday afternoon when it plunged into Bear Lake, about 40 miles west of Campbell River, and sank in 100 feet of water.

On the high seas it's called piracy. But in Iran they call it "nationalization."

Demand Deadlock Broken

PARIS (AP)—The United States, Britain and France challenged Russia today to accept a four-power foreign ministers' meeting in Washington July 23 "in the interests of strengthening peace."

The three western powers sent identical notes aimed at breaking the deadlock over what world tensions the four foreign ministers should discuss. The four power deputies have been trying to do that in Paris since March.

The American, French and British deputies here handed the notes to Russia's deputy foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, at their 64th meeting on a top-level conference agenda. Copies also were handed over at the Kremlin in Moscow by the western ambassadors.

The notes blamed lack of agreement on an agenda upon the Soviet insistence that the Big Four should discuss the North Atlantic alliance and the establishment of American bases in Europe.

BLAME FACT

The Soviet Union contends the Atlantic Pact is a major cause of international tension. The west rejects this claim.

The notes explain that the western powers proposed May 2 that there be three alternative agendas. One of these has become known as the "split agenda" because it contains both the west's and Russia's wordings, side by side, on the question of armaments and armed forces.

The notes contend that agreement could have been reached on this "split agenda" except for Russia's demand that the Atlantic Pact be discussed. The west holds it is ready to attend a Big Four meeting on the basis of this "split agenda" or on either of the other two alternative agendas.

OBJECTIVE, PEACE

The notes declare the three western governments believe such a meeting is desirable in the interest of strengthening peace, described as the constant objective of western foreign policy.

All three agendas call for the examination by the foreign ministers of present international tensions. Two agendas list questions relating to demilitarization of Germany, arms of the Big Four, the Austrian independence and German peace treaties and fulfillment of peace treaties with Italy, Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary. Italy's obligations concerning Trieste also is listed.

The third agenda briefly lists questions concerning armaments and armed forces, Austria, Germany and fulfillment of treaties. The wording of the various items and the order in which the items would appear on the agenda brought the bitter dispute among the deputies in Paris through 64 meetings.

45,000 Rebels Launch Attack

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—French army sources said today 45,000 Communist-led Viet Minh are attacking on a front 50 miles south of Hanoi held by only 4,000 French troops. French losses were described as severe.

The Communists launched their assault Monday night. The army post at Ninh Binh was hit by 10,000 of the Viet Minh, who used mortars and artillery in the assault. Hard fighting raged for 48 hours and one French naval commando unit lost 50 of its 80 men.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

FESTIVAL IMPRESSIONS

LONDON—As I mentioned the other day, we visited the Festival of Britain on the south bank of the Thames a few days ago—along with about 73,000 other would-be sight-seers. And found it a revelation, in more senses than one.

For the South Bank Exhibition is neither a museum of British culture nor a trade show of British wares, although it combines something of both in its immense scope. What it does is to tell the story of British contributions to world civilization in the arts of peace—plus some fingerposts into the future.

MODERN OR MONSTROUS?

ARCHITECTURALLY, it is an amazing—and some critics call it a monstrous—thing. There is something of the fantasy of H. G. Wells, for instance, about the Dome of Discovery, the largest of the exhibition erections, which looks like a gargantuan mushroom of aluminum, 365 feet across, supported around the edges by a zig-zag arrangement of lattice steel struts that look too slender to support anything, let alone that enormous roof.

Close by is the Skydon, that 300-foot tall aluminum pencil, suspended vertically on a cradle of slender steel wires. When illuminated at night, it suggests a new and strange sort of meteor, just dropped from the heavens and posed in mid-flight before plunging into the earth. To the young fry it is what conducts the radio waves about their business!

OF THINGS TO COME

THE STRIKING and fantastic modernity of these and other structures in the Festival have aroused a storm of controversy, needless to say, between the old and new schools. The modernists claim they are the shape of things to come. The traditionalists view them with horror.

Among the latter is that George Bernard Shaw of the musical world, Sir Thomas Beecham, who in a speech recently described the Royal Festival Hall of Music as "the most repellent, most unattractive, most ugly and most monstrous structure" ever erected in Britain. Yet the designers claim that for acoustics it cannot be beaten—and it will remain to annoy Sir Thomas long after the Festival has ended.

HOME OF DISCOVERY

INSIDE, the Dome of Discovery has a series of upper galleries resting on concrete ribs and reached by long escalators. But it was its contents, as much as its weird structural design, which intrigued me. For here the whole motif of the Festival is symbolized: here, a brilliantly conceived display of British achievement throughout the ages, and its potential in the future, told through the medium of its discoveries in and on the earth and in space.

Explorers like Captain Cook and David Livingstone, scientists like Newton, Darwin and Faraday, explorations ranging from those into the bowels of the earth, into the outermost regions of the stratosphere, and into the harnessing of nuclear energy—all these and their interrelated subjects are vividly portrayed.

LION AND UNICORN

PERHAPS it was in the building known as The Lion and The Unicorn that my response was greatest. The significance of the title is explained in the following mural inscription, flanked on either side by enormous models of the real and the mythical animals:

"We are the Lion and the Unicorn.
Twin symbols of the British character.
As a Lion I give him solidity and strength,
With the Unicorn he lets himself go."

The Lion was epitomized in the sections devoted to Britain's contributions to the sacred cause of personal freedom, as founded on Magna Charta and carried down through its courts and parliaments; its contributions to literature and art, and its superb craftsmanship. The other facet of British character, its love of fantasy, independence and imagination, was expressed in a series of Heath-Robinson-like mechanical absurdities, notable cartoons—and the minutes of the Snail-Watching Society!

TIMES' ON EXHIBITION

BUT YOU CAN imagine our pride and joy at seeing a bit of Victoria included in that very erudite and entertaining building. Just as we entered the main door, a spectacular wall display caught my eye. Thirty or 40 feet high, it consisted of a huge globe made of brass, flanked by the Lion and the Unicorn and captioned, in huge letters, "English is a World Language."

Surrounding it was a collection of about 100 newspapers from all parts of the British Commonwealth. And exactly in the centre, prominently displayed at eye level, flanked by the Gibraltar Chronicle and the Trinidad Guardian, was a copy of the Victoria Daily Times—the only British Columbia paper in the whole building and one of the only three Canadian papers included in the collection. Do you wonder that we almost burst with pride?

Painters' Association Rejects Wage Proposal

The Victoria Master Painters' Association today served notice on the B.C. Labor Relations Board that its employer members have rejected the majority recommendation of a three-man conciliation board, suggesting that painting contractors here provide their employees with a 12½-cent-an-hour wage increase.

In a letter to the board, association secretary Frank Ireland said the best offer that could be made to painters was 10 cents an hour.

Earlier, the conciliation board recommendation was turned down by Local 1163 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers. Union men felt the 12½-cent recommendation was not enough and voted to press their original demand for a 25-cent increase. They also want union shop provision made in their work contract.

The Master Painters' Association has voted continually against union shop, but have allowed for maintenance of membership in the union agreement. The union now has an application before the Labor Relations Board requesting a supervised strike vote.

About 50 painters are concerned.

The current rate of pay in Victoria for painters is $1.45 an hour for brush work and $1.55 for spray work.

In opposing any increase higher than 10 cents, the contractors' association argues that painters have been boosted 35 cents an hour during the last two years.

The union has pointed out that the cost of living has risen 19.1 points since painters received their last increase.

Oak Bay Garden Watering

In an effort to cause the least inconvenience to home owners this summer, it has been decided to leave the matter of restrictions in garden watering up to the common sense of our ratepayers.

You are, therefore, forthwith, strongly requested to limit your watering to three days of your own choice per week, plus Sundays.

As fixed sprinkling systems are heavy users of water all at one time, it is most desirable that they should not be put into operation any day between the hours of 3 p.m. and 9 p.m., including Sundays.

If the above voluntary system is not observed, compulsory regulations will again have to be put in force, to the inconvenience of many concerned.

Fire Threatening Abitibi Pulp Mill

Blaze One Of 17 Raging Out Of Control On Ontario-Quebec Border

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—A fire raced unchecked through rich timberland north of Lake Abitibi today and lashed out towards the big Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company.

The blaze, which started late Wednesday, already has destroyed 4,800 acres of spruce and jackpine about 100 miles northeast of here on the Quebec border.

It was the only one of 17 forest fires in the province still burning out of control.

Three hundred volunteer firefighters tried unsuccessfully today to drive a flaming wedge in front of the blaze. A. S. Bray, regional forester, said he hoped the army of men will be able to encircle the fire perimeter late today.

The fire was advancing through old slash left from pulpwood operations.

T. E. Mackey, chief forest protection officer, said the paper company is in no immediate danger. But a change of wind will send the fire sweeping down on the nearby pulpwood camp, he said.

Gift Shops Operators Would Ask Concession

Operators of Victoria shops and stores catering almost exclusively to the tourist, today said they are not satisfied that nothing can be done, without upsetting the whole framework of the by-law to allow them to remain open on Wednesday afternoons during the tourist season.

Alan Vizard, of Victoria Gift Shop, made it clear that the concession was not being sought for everyone. "Only those shops dealing almost exclusively in gifts are vitally affected," he said.

Mr. Vizard declared that newsstands and some other concessions remained open not only on Wednesday afternoon but also on Sundays. "Surely this is a right that might be reasonably asked by the gift shop operators during the tourist season," he continued.

His statement followed an assertion by City Solicitor A. J. Patton that only a city referendum favoring elimination of the weekly half-holiday could result in a change of legislation.

Many gift shop operators were irked Wednesday at having to keep shops closed while holidaying American tourists were in the city. Wednesday was Memorial Day, a U.S. holiday. They pointed out that another important U.S. holiday, July 4, when hundreds of American tourists will again come to Victoria, also falls on a Wednesday.

RETURN TO ALMA MATER

Victoria High Grads Back For Anniversary

Many fond memories of happy days gone by will be recalled by former students of Victoria High School, Friday and Saturday, when they return to the Fernwood Road institution to participate in the 75th anniversary celebration of the school's founding.

It is anticipated several thousand graduates of the school will return to witness afternoon and evening events.

Inter-high school track events, with many mainland entries, will be held both afternoons, with races on Saturday—deciding the provincial championships.

A pageant, depicting life and times of three generations of Dispecker, himself a graduate of the school.

Much time and work has been put into production of the pageant by staff and students of the school. Authentic costumes; for early-day scenes, have been acquired from the Provincial Archives, George Strait Ltd., and many private individuals.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Roberto Wood are musical directors of the show; Mrs. Dorothy Hoggood is in charge of the school orchestra, and Miss Sheila Stanley is arranging dance numbers. Malcolm Hamilton is piano accompanist.

JUNE OPENS WITH WARM TEMPERATURE

Victorians will start the month of June tomorrow with sunny weather and a temperature of about 65 degrees, according to the weatherman on Gonzales Hill.

During May Victorians got more wind, sunshine and rain than for the same period last year, the weatherman said. Sunshine hours up to noon totalled 285 hours as compared with 270.4 hours for May, 1950.

The all-time record in May was set in 1935 and 1938 when the sun shone for 333.6 hours.

The precipitation this month was 1.07 inches as compared with .71 for the same period last year.

Show Goes On Despite Fire

VANCOUVER (UP)—Two fires burned out a utility room in a Vancouver theatre and destroyed a shingle mill here overnight.

Some 400 movie patrons watched the screen at the International Cinema, while theatre manager Walter Hopp turned a hose on the fire in the utility room. The movie-goers were not told to leave and the fire was out before any of them knew of the blaze.

Six pieces of equipment, and the city's old fire barge, J. H. Carlisle, were called out to fight the blaze at Forest Enterprises shingle mill. The small plant was destroyed, but no damage estimate was released by company officials.

Call Reserves Up In Gotham Price Battle

NEW YORK (UP)—Department stores called out their reserves today to take on throngs of eager shoppers snapping up the biggest bargains since World War II in the "Battle of 34th Street."

Macy's, world's largest department store under one roof, which declared the price war two days ago by slashing 6,000 "price-fixed" items by 6 per cent, indicated the war would be a long one. In newspaper want ads it called for more sales personnel and comparison shoppers and it prepared to triple its private police force to meet the rush.

Gimbel's, the city's No. 2 store which faces Macy's across 34th Street, was ready to meet price cut with price cut and advised customers: "Shop and compare! Nobody but nobody beats Gimbel's at the job of keeping prices down."

And the city's third largest department store, Abraham & Straus in Brooklyn, advertised it was ready to beat Macy's prices with "savings up to 10 per cent and even more."

The weather was fair today with the temperature rising toward 80 degrees and most of the stores planned to stay open until 9 p.m.

SONNY TUFTS ARRESTED ON DRUNK CHARGE

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Sonny Tufts, whose wife sued him Tuesday because she claimed he drank too much, was booked at dawn today on a drunk charge.

Jailed with him was Laukiana Kaelo, 28-year-old Hawaiian actress, who complained:

"I paid the bill and now I'm in jail."

Police said Tufts, 41, was picked up outside an all-night cafe, arguing with the owner over a $5 bill.

Mrs. Barbara Tufts, suing for separate maintenance, alleged that for more than a year Sonny has been "addicted to excessive use of alcohol" and has been dissipating their funds. They have been married 13 years.

Navy Expels Rash Officer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Admiral Forrest P. Sherman disclosed in his testimony Wednesday on the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur that the Navy has just ousted a lieutenant who wrote a letter vehemently criticizing administration policies and supporting MacArthur's views.

The officer was identified by Senator Styles Bridges (Rep., N.H.) as Lieut. W. A. Evans. Alfred Kohlberg, chairman of the board of the American-China policy association, of New York, told a reporter in Washington the letter came to him. He said Evans now is in the Washington area, where he was called for naval hearings on the case. He said Evans wrote the letter last March while aboard the destroyer Rogers, off Korea.

Their tour will open Saturday with a 50-mile journey through provincial areas.

The Alliance Under Strain

THE CURRENT STRAINS ON THE alliance of the free world, which were mentioned here the other day, will be increased by what seems to be a reversal of American policy in Asia.

Up to now that policy has been to repel and punish aggression by the Chinese Communist government. It has not been to destroy that government and install another government. On the contrary, the United States long ago abandoned the hope of reviving the only available alternative government, that of Chiang Kai-shek.

A few days ago, however, Mr. Dean Rusk, Assistant Secretary of State, apparently speaking for the government, announced that the United States would never recognize the Communist government of Peking but did "recognize the National Government of the Republic of China even though the territory under its control is severely restricted." If these words mean what they seem to mean, the United States is returning to full support of Chiang Kai-shek and intends, if possible, to return him to China.

If that is the United States intention it risks a breach with its allies more serious than all the grave disagreements of the last year. For if anything is clear about the policies and wishes of the other allied governments it is their opposition to Chiang Kai-shek.

Britain, for example, has officially recognized the Communist government, which may have been a mistake but certainly was undertaken with the knowledge, consent and encouragement of the United States government. India has gone much further and tried to make friends with the Chinese Communists. Canada, in the latest statement of Mr. Pearson, takes the view that Chiang, repudiated by his own people and driven into exile, would be a useless tool militarily, would only involve the western world in a full-scale Chinese war if he were returned to the mainland and, politically, would antagonize the whole of Asia against the west.

Writing on this page, Mr. Walter Lippmann pursues the apparent change in American policy to its logical end. He says that the United States government, in all its recent testimony to Congress, has sought to limit the present war to Korea. But if Mr. Rusk's speech represents actual American policy then the attempt to limit the war has been, in fact, abandoned.

If the new policy intends to destroy the Communist government and re-establish Chiang it can be carried through only by a huge and perhaps an interminable war in Asia, which could easily develop into a world war. Hence the statements of such men as General Marshall, in favor of a limited war, are canceled out by the statement of Mr. Rusk in favor of an unlimited commitment to change the Chinese government and force upon the Chinese people again a regime which they themselves drove into the sea.

Mr. Rusk's statement urgently requires clarification. If it was only an after-dinner speech of personal opinion it would cause only passing confusion. If it was a considered utterance of the government—denying everything the government was saying to Congress at the same time—then the sharpest difficulties between the United States and its friends can be clearly foreseen.

The simple fact is that the United Nations are ready to repel Communist aggression, even at the risk of general war, but are not ready to fight communism as a doctrine, believing that it can never be conquered by military means. And they certainly are not prepared to embark on a general Asiatic war to put Chiang back in power.

A Rebel In The C.C.F.

THE SPLIT IN THE C.C.F. OF BRITISH Columbia, as candidly admitted at its recent Vancouver conference, finds a distant echo in the House of Commons. There Mr. Ross Thatcher, C.C.F. member for Moose Jaw, has lately expressed something like a party heresy.

Whereas the C.C.F. is demanding higher taxes on corporations to pay the cost of government painlessly (as if higher corporation taxes would not be handed on to the public in prices) Mr. Thatcher rejects the official policy of his party. A businessman himself, Mr. Thatcher argues that corporation taxes already are close to saturation point and that further levies would be justified only in the event of war.

In an interesting dispute with one of his followers, Mr. Coldwell replied that Canada already was at war in Korea. But what Mr. Thatcher clearly meant was that higher corporation taxes would be justified only in the event of general war, in which we are not yet engaged.

The disagreement between the C.C.F. leader and Mr. Thatcher is not on some minor detail of taxation. It is basic.

The C.C.F. has based its whole financial program—if it can be called a program—on the proposition that virtually unlimited government spending can be financed by taxes on the rich, especially the rich corporations whose dividends, in fact, go to thousands of ordinary Canadians. Over and over again Mr. Coldwell has promised to "get the money where the money is," in plain disregard of the known facts.

The facts, as Mr. Coldwell could observe by glancing at the annual report on national income, are simple—most of the nation's income goes to the people of the lower income brackets because there are so many of them. Only a tiny fraction of the total goes to the rich who already are heavily taxed, as they should be.

Since the higher and even the middle income brackets already have been almost exhausted as a source of taxation, the Government must go down to the lower brackets to raise any large additional sums of revenue and that is precisely what the Government is doing.

If it also increases taxes on business it will cause these taxes to be carried into prices, paid by the consumer. Then, if the process goes far enough and destroys the chance of profit, it will discourage business from producing and thus strike at production, our essential need, especially in a time of inflation.

All this Mr. Thatcher evidently understands and quarrels outright with the fundamental theories of his party. In a party split between its western agrarians and eastern labor unions, between its moderate right wing and its leftist fellow travelers who would appease Communist aggression, Mr. Coldwell's position on the tightrope becomes increasingly difficult.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

LAST WEEK I overheard a radio program in the middle of my morning's tasks and a few phrases so gripped me that I knocked off work and began some serious listening. This program came from Toronto over the CBC and was also carried through the States by the ABC. The fact that it went to Americans was a little unfortunate, since the main theme was something like this: "We in Canada must be polite to Americans . . . we all have a responsibility to do so, every man, woman and child of us . . . because it will be very profitable to our tourist trade!" The word "profitable" was actually used.

NOW, we certainly have a responsibility not to offend Americans in these ticklish times. The better the western nations can get to like each other and trust each other, the safer the world will be. And that is certainly one type of profit. But the writers of the script were talking about another kind, of course. They meant the profit that comes from the tourist industry. (The program was in aid of some sort of Be Kind to Tourists Week.) And very nice that profit is, too. It is also very necessary if we want American dollars to balance our trade. Nevertheless, I object with all my strength to being told that I must put on a fake politeness in order to soften up a visitor. If I want to be polite, then I want to be polite free of charge. If I enjoy being decent to Americans (or anyone else), as I hope I frequently do, I don't charge them a nickel. Nor do I expect a tip.

THERE is something insulting, both to me and the American, about those instructions. I freely grant you that half the art of inn-keeping is to be civil. The broadcast naturally brought this point up also, though I don't know how many inn-keepers are free to listen to radios all day . . . in any event, they should be told such secrets privately, if they don't already know them. But most of us are not inn-keepers. We should be civil just an account of manners, not cash.

THE LATE Stephen Leacock said that we didn't want to become a whole nation of waiters, with napkins over our arms. (Perhaps I have quoted that here before, but it needs repeating more and more each year.) He said we could leave that to the Swiss. It may also have been Leacock who said that the Swiss used to be mountain robbers but now they just keep hotels.

I am not being snobbish about waiters even if waiters are too often snobbish about me. I have every respect for good waiters; they are a charming survival from a happier age. Today we have mostly bad waiters, I suppose, but I can feel more sorry than contemptuous about them. If we could have more good waiters, it would make everyone happier, including the waiters . . . and including the tourists. No, all I am saying is that we don't want to become a country crammed solid with mock-waiters. If we did we would be mocking both ourselves and our very good friends to the south of us.

CUSTOM-BUILT A VISITOR from England was asking me what "custom-built" meant. He said he saw it everywhere in the shops . . . on cars, furniture or almost anything else. I said I had never been wholly sure myself, but I'd always understood it to mean an article made to the customer's own specifications. My friend said that words change their meaning every day . . . that has happened all through the ages. But he reckoned this was the first age when a word could go completely dead on us and lose all meaning whatsoever, while still remaining in use.

Well, as we all know, "custom-built" now means anything but that. A custom-built car is not made to my own specifications at all, but put together on a long assembly line as the identical twin of ten thousand others. My friend said that words change their meaning every day . . . that has happened all through the ages. But he reckoned this was the first age when a word could go completely dead on us and lose all meaning whatsoever, while still remaining in use.

WORD CHANGES THERE is no end to the list of words that have changed meaning. Buxom used to mean obliging, not plump. Silly used to mean happy (still surviving in "silly Suffolk"). Quaint used to mean clever, ingenious, etc. Nice once meant foolish. Since all people use words, all people presumably have some kind of interest in them, even the language suffers from that interest being a little feeble. It fascinates me to learn, as I have just learnt this morning, that a cretin, which now means a deformed idiot in the Alps, once meant a Christian. . . . I'm not sure, but at a guess I would say that this curious change came about because men needed reminding that an idiot still has a soul.

Well, as I was about to tell you, auburn once meant "whitish." Auburn hair was flaxen hair. I mentioned this idly to a pal, long ago, and he told me he had seen women with auburn hair in both senses . . . flaxen at the ends, with browner hair that needed fresh peroxide near the roots.

NEXT MORNING I have a treasured memory Of someone rather dim. I cannot quite recall if it Was her or whom or him. The only thing that I recollect, It was a lot of fun, And since I am no fun alone, There must have been SOMEONE.

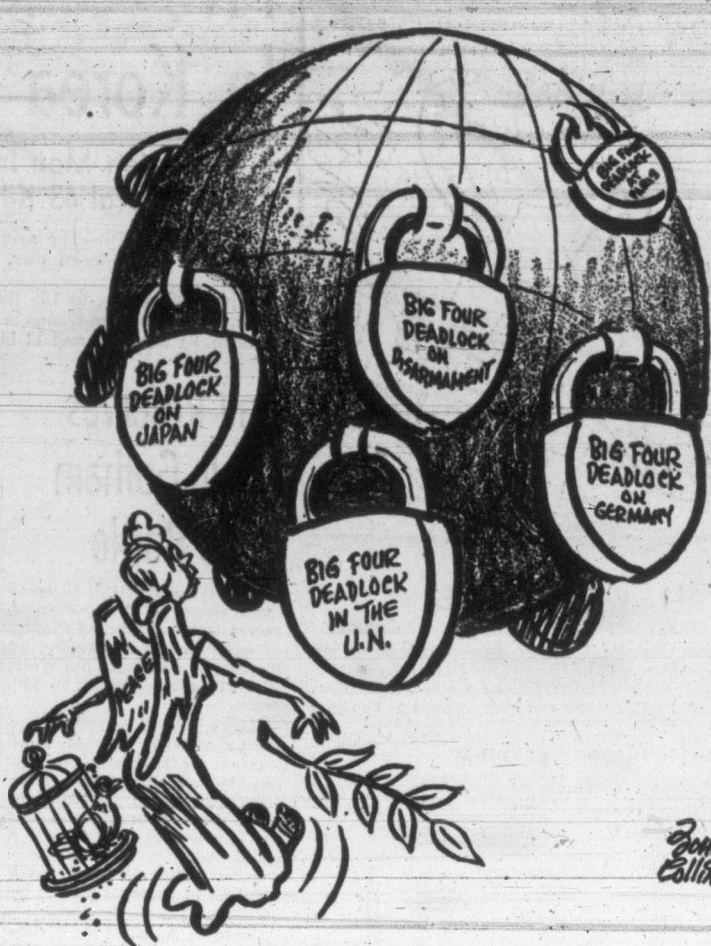

Rabbit And Gopher

Calgary Albertan

It's somewhat amusing to see the C.C.F. and Social Credit scrapping over who is going to govern Canada. They both assume that the present form of "capitalism" is going to break down. Socialism can be the only alternative, according to the C.C.F., while Social Credit says there is a third alternative, financial reform, and socialism can be avoided only by accepting that third alternative. So the dispute goes.

Somehow it reminds us of a rabbit and a gopher arguing about which of them is going to be king of beasts day after tomorrow, overlooking the fact that the lion has no thought of abdicating.

No Admission

As Our Readers See It

WITH CONTEXT

Your correspondent Mr. Waldron Green's statements in The Times of May 22 could have been all right had they not been all wrong! By taking a text out of its context one could even make the Bible say: "There is no God," whereas it really says: "The fool hath said: There is no God!"

In quoting Acts 26 verse 10 and omitting to read as far as verse 18 inclusive, he is quoting only part of Paul's story. When the latter stood in his own defence before King Agrippa he was no longer Saul the persecutor and killer but Paul the greatest of all missionaries and life restorer. (Acts 26:9-12.)

With all due respect for Professor F. Ayres' learning yet his hypothetical "vagaries and honest doubts" do not measure up to the Christian's: "Thus saith the Lord" and his positive: "I know Whom I have believed!"

Christians do not have to "presume that they know all the answers," they simply refer to the infallible Book of Books for an answer to any reasonable question. Knowledge without wisdom is not wise but wisdom with knowledge made the Lord say: "Blessed are the poor in spirit (or 'worldly learning'), for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven." L. J. ECKMAN.

TREATMENT OF ANIMALS

I beg sufficient of your space to go on record as being one of many, I feel confident, who deplores the inevitable death penalty dealt all wild life found in or near civilization in or out of legal season.

It was with sad heart that I read of the killing of two raccoons and the rather heartless manner of pouring water in their tree stump home in an attempt to destroy any of their young. Just a few days previously pictures appeared of a bear shot near here.

None of these animals are dangerous—at Banff and Jasper, in our national parks, the citizens live harmoniously enough with bears, deer, moose, etc., on their very front door steps.

It is indeed a banner day when somebody catches a wild animal and releases it to freedom in its out of door environment. To any parent trying to teach kindness to animals and respect for the policeman—the killing of these two raccoons in Oak Bay presents a hopeless problem.

The Oak Bay Police have done themselves a very poor job of public relations in this instance. (Think of the better public reaction to a picture showing the 'coons, alive, being released by a kindly cop.)

Under the circumstances it would be more humane if the police stick to their tried, and true assignments: whistling at jaywalkers, checking meters, etc. BRANSON BROWNE.

Sooke, B.C.

DEATH-BED PROFESSIONS

May I add just a few words to the letter of Mrs. Marian N. Sherman who, in a letter in your issue of May 23, asks what is thought of the quotation: "Few men profess Atheism on their death-bed." From the fact that most people die as they have lived the quotation means little. It is true that priests frequently profess to having secured confessions from murderers before death when arrangements for a satisfactory immortality have been arranged, but the victims had no such opportunity. Men like Abraham Lincoln die as they have lived, but frequently priests or preachers read their religious services at their graves, often at the request of fearful relatives or friends, who thus betray and cause to be insulted, the memory of their dead friend.

SEAFRONT DEVELOPMENT

I was interested to read your column of opinions of various citizens regarding improving Victoria from the tourists' point of view.

During the 25 years that I lived in Victoria I constantly wondered why something was not done to develop the waterfront as is done in Great Britain, where the seaside resorts have beautiful gardens and esplanades, with a pier and bandstand for concerts.

Victoria's climate is similar to many seacoast towns in England, and like all coast towns is subject to wind, but this could be controlled by glassed-in shelters with sliding windows.

There is not even an attractive lunch room or tea house on the seafont where tourists could take a meal while enjoying the natural scenery. In such pleasure resorts as Bournemouth there are lovely botanical gardens and also a "winter garden" where one can hear all the great musical artists as in London.

There seems no reason why Victoria should not follow this example so that tourists may be entertained by more than natural beauty. Such a development would also provide employment. DOROTHY SPURR.

Fiddle Faddle In Iran

By JOSEPH ALSOP, from London

IF YOU want to find out what is wrong with, and between the American and British governments, a good way is to study the handling of the Middle Eastern crisis. It may be useful to make this clinical experiment during the present lull, while the last-minute attempt is being made to bring in a new administration in Teheran.

As to the American role, the simplest way to describe the behavior of the State Department's bright minds, is to say that they took being right once as a license for being continuously wrong thereafter.

The momentary flash of insight occurred a good many months ago, when Assistant Secretary of State George McGhee pleaded with the British to offer the Iranians a better oil contract. If McGhee's advice had then been taken, the new oil contract might have been got through the Iranian parliament, and the present trouble might have been avoided.

Unfortunately, the singularly complacent chairman of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, Sir William Fraser, was then arguing that the Iranians would "come to heel" as soon as they ran out of cash. And in those happy, distant days the Foreign Office was backing Fraser.

Then came the opening of the crisis, when Gen. Razmara was assassinated and the original oil nationalization resolution passed the Majlis. From this moment onward, all talk of better oil contracts, in the early McGhee manner, was quite obviously futile.

The Razmara murder and its sequel taught the Foreign Office that Fraser had been wrong, yet it was distasteful to admit that McGhee had been right. It was still more distasteful to face the harsh realities of the new situation which from the first offered only three choices: A, knuckling under to the Iranians; B, trying to bring in a new government at Teheran, and C, getting ready to send troops to Iran. And it was most distasteful of all to ask the State Department for the help and support that were necessary to execute alternatives B or C.

CHOICE OF THREE

So far as one can judge, the Foreign Office instinctively grasped that the choice was among these three courses listed above. But the State Department had an old-maidenish fit of the vapors at the mere hint of such coarse action as these alternatives implied.

This critical period, when the whole business might have been handled smoothly and without needless risk, was also marked by extreme Anglo-American ill feeling. The Americans darkly thought that the unenlightened British were still hankering to grind the faces of the Iranian poor; and they also suspected the British of seeking a pretext to send troops to Iran, which was certainly the last thing desired in London.

The British, for their part, firmly believed that the sly Americans were manoeuvring to get the British out of Iran and then exploit the oil themselves—a plan much too hard-headed to be entertained by the State Department.

During all this period, therefore, no facts were faced, no frankness was used, between the Anglo-American partners. The real issues were never really seriously discussed until a fortnight ago, when the danger of an immediate explosion in Teheran could no longer be ignored. Then the matter began to be handled by Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson in person.

Then the British, who had taken the lack of American support as a pretext for not thinking about the horrid problem of sending troops, at last ordered the parachute brigade to the Middle East. And then the British and Americans at last agreed that a new government at Teheran might be a good thing after all.

We shall see soon enough whether the situation has not meanwhile got too far out of hand to be brought under control again. For the present, one can only say that the foregoing record makes Nero look pretty good. At least he fiddled while Rome burned. Fiddling is a lot better than fiddle-faddling.

Smoke Nuisance Can Be Reduced

FOLLOWING DISCUSSIONS ON TUESDAY morning, Victoria's fire wardens plan to meet mill owners of this community in an effort to find a solution to the smoke problem. Co-operative action should be forthcoming. The course the wardens are pursuing is essentially reasonable.

It is, however, only an approach. Residents in areas adjacent to the mill district will want something more than that. They may be justified in expecting more than a revived interest in the anti-smoke by-law now on the city's books but seldom, if ever, applied.

No one discounts the difficulties of curtailing the output from mill chimneys. Few who have given the question even cursory study believe the desired objective can be approached without considerable expense on the part of mill operators. That, in turn, involves increased costs of operation for the plants concerned.

Obviously this city does not want to throw obstacles in the way of industry. At the same time, its long-suffering residents living close to the mill district want no more smoke.

Two constructive courses suggest themselves. One is the practical and simple policy of insisting on more careful firing. The other is a closer study of methods employed in Britain, where scientific research has provided improved methods of fuel use.

HOME GARDEN

by Jack Beasall
These are the Ten Commandments of the Men's Garden Club of Villa Park (Chicago) Illinois.

1. I will not begin gardening enthusiastically in the spring and then let my interest dwindle in July.
2. I will not forget where I put the garden tools and then accuse other members of the family of having misplaced them.
3. I will not come into the house with trousers full of grass, earth, or fertilizer which gets nicely spread around by and by.
4. I will not pan other people's gardens, nor will I adopt a contemptuous attitude to those whose enthusiasm doesn't equal my own.
5. I will not resent the family, including the children, sharing the garden with me.
6. I will not be bossy about how and who should walk where in the garden.
7. I will not choose all the flowers and plants for the garden without regard for the tastes and wishes of other members of the family.

8. I will not garden as the mood strikes me, sticking things in without any preparation and then expecting them to grow without any care.
9. I will not blame the seedsman or nurseryman when plants or seeds I have purchased do not always perform in proportion to my highest expectations, but will first consider if perhaps I was not in some way to blame for their failure to thrive.
10. I will not exclaim to my companions, "Oh, I've got better ones at home," when I visit the local flower show. Instead, I will remember that any flower show depends on my support, and I will act accordingly by entering as many exhibits as possible. (From Geo. J. Ball, Inc., "Grower Talks.")

Reds Set To Invest Tibet

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Peiping Radio said today Chinese Communist troops in Western Sikkim province have completed preparations for entering Tibet. The Chinese Government published its 17-point pact with Tibet last Sunday under which Tibet agrees to "return to the motherland" and allow Chinese troops to enter the country and "consolidate the national defenses." Peiping Radio's broadcast today added that the Chinese troops on the Tibetan frontier had cabled a report of their readiness to march to Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung and his government.

(Reports reaching India from Tibet last October said that Chinese columns had crossed the frontier in force then and were camping in Eastern Tibet.)

Solo Polar Flight Easy But Once Proves Plenty

Never Again, Says Flier Blair; Air Force Interested In Operational 'Dope' Learned

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles Blair Jr., the first man to fly alone over the North Pole in a single-engine plane, says the record trip was "awfully easy" but he doesn't want to do it again.

The 41-year-old airlines pilot flew across the top of the world Tuesday in his converted F-51 Mustang fighter plane, the "Flying Gas Tank." His 3,300-mile non-stop flight from Bardu, Norway, to Fairbanks, Alaska, took 10 hours and 27 minutes.

About eight hours later, Blair took off from Fairbanks and flew another 3,450 miles non-stop to New York, where he arrived nine hours and 31 minutes later at 4:40 p.m. E.D.T. yesterday.

Blair, on vacation from his pilot's post with Pan-American World Airways, said:

"It is awfully easy to fly across the top... but I wouldn't want to do it again. Once is enough."

Blair mentioned no specific purpose of the polar flight, but admitted the United States air force is interested in any navigational or operational "dope" he picked up.

He told reporters he flew about 25,000 feet over the polar area and encountered temperatures as low as 25 degrees below zero.

He said his trim, scarlet craft "performed beautifully" all the way, laden as it was with extra gas tanks. His only troubles, he said, were a short radio blackout and a nosebleed.

Military Training Urged On Students

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Conference of Canadian Universities Wednesday urged students to enlist in one or other of the University Armed Services Training Corps.

The 144 delegates to the advisory boards' three-day meeting adopted a committee report at opening session urging enlistment.

They agreed that "the question of preparation for defence must be raised to a new level of serious urgency. The universities have a vital contribution to make in training men who may be able to give leadership in the armed forces."

SAYS SEAMEN SOBER CREW

BALTIMORE (AP)—The roistering seaman with a yen for strong drink is vanishing from the ships that sail our seas, says a man who tends to their shore needs. "I'm tired of hearing about sailors who 'drink,'" said Harry Nilsson, of the Norwegian Sailors' Home in Brooklyn, N.Y., at the spring conference of the Conference on Seamen's Agencies in the U.S. and Canada.

U.S. Tries Out New Political Weapon

Would Strike Directly At Source Of Russian Power, Dulles Reveals

WASHINGTON (AP)—Although it is a hush-hush project, the United States is trying to develop new political weapons to strike directly at the sources of Russian power among peoples behind the Iron Curtain.

The latest assertion that this line of attack offers a way for the free world to seize the initiative in the conflict with Communism and holds the key to eventual victory without global war—comes from John Foster Dulles, Republican foreign policy adviser.

Dulles told a University of Arizona commencement audience at Tucson last night that "despotic societies . . . seem hard and invulnerable, in reality, their inner life is corrupted by the excessive power of a few, by fear and jealousy, and by the stifling of individual initiative and responsibility."

Half-war indefinitely. Dulles, one of State Secretary Dean Acheson's top advisers, said it may appear Russia's leaders have the capacity to carry on the present state of half-war indefinitely. Actually, he said, he is confident their ability to do so could "quickly be disintegrated by skillfully applied pressures."

A somewhat similar view was expressed last week by President Truman in his foreign aid message to Congress.

Officials here are extremely reluctant to talk about measures which are being or may be taken to bring about the disintegration of Soviet power of which Dulles spoke.

Dulles himself is known to feel the free countries need a sort of counterpart of the international Communist Party—that is, some international political movement to work in their interest and promote their cause.

How such an agency might be created, or whether the same purpose could be achieved by closer organization of Anti-Communist forces in the free countries, and their underground affiliates apparently is still an open question.

Ends Long Police Career

Detective-sergeant Henry Jarvis, left, with Chief of Police John Blackstock recall old days of policing Victoria as the plainclothes man today wrote into 30-year career as a law officer. They are looking at picture of late Thomas Palmer, who was chief when war veteran Jarvis joined force in 1921. Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis will leave June 10 for a four-month visit with relatives in England.

Reds Want 100 Per Cent 'Peace Plebiscite' Vote

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's Communist bosses today demanded a "100-per-cent" turnout for next week's "Peace Plebiscite" in the Russian zone.

The East Sector government announced the machinery is all set to poll 12,000,000 eligible East Germans on the double-barreled question:

"Are you against remilitarization and are you for a peace treaty for Germany in 1951?"

By special decree, youths as young as 16 are permitted to cast a vote in the poll.

West Germany and West Berlin have forbidden the poll in their territory as pure Communist propaganda.

The "votes" will be taken on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in the Soviet sector of this city and the surrounding Soviet zone.

In previous controlled elections, the East Zone has piled up as much as 99.7 per cent of the eligible vote. In driving for "100 per cent" this time, the Communist rulers have a powerful weapon. To abstain or to declare oneself against a peace treaty and in favor of rearming brands an East German as an "enemy" of the state and an enemy of the Soviet Union—punishable by long jail sentences or even death.

Vetoed Track Ban. TALLAHASSEE, Fla. Outlines Procedure For Protection In Air Raid

Responsibility of industry to protect both staff and customers in the event of an air raid, was the theme of an address by Regional Civil Defence Co-ordinator Leonard Hatcher to the Optimist Club luncheon at the Pacific Club today.

A store for example he said, should train its staff, assigning each a job to do, whether it be attending to light switches, water power, closing of windows or conducting patrons to the safest spot and seeing that they remain there.

Similarly in an office block, tenants should map out plans for each individual when the warning goes, Mr. Hatcher said. "Each person should know what to do and in what order," he said. "Owners of stores should consult with civil defence authorities to find which part of the building is safest."

There should be proper air space, first aid, radio, water, blankets and simple tools.

Mr. Hatcher also outlined what use would be made of the Sea Cadets and Boy Scouts in the event of air raids.

Forgery Trial To Hear Expert. R.C.M.P. officers have reported they will bring a hand-writing expert from Regina to give testimony in the case involving two charges of forgery against Clifford T. Ashton, 26, Vancouver.

He was remanded to June 5 for trial in city police court. Second charge of forgery of a Canadian postal money order for $50 was read against Ashton today. He previously pleaded not guilty to forgery of a money order for $45.

SEATTLE'S KID MATTHEWS SEEKING 'BIGGER GAME'

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP) — Harry (The Kid) Matthews, Seattle's fistic pride, was looking for new fields to conquer today after he left local fight fans buzzing with his third-round knockout of Frank Buford, Oakland, Calif., heavyweight, here Tuesday night.

It was the third straight knockout in as many Portland appearances for the talented light-heavyweight. Last year, he disposed of Anton Radick and earlier this year he dropped Ron Whittle, Salt Lake City battler, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight.

Matthews manager, Jack Hurley, said he wants a shot at Joey Maxim, current light-heavyweight king, who lost a 15-round decision to heavyweight king Ezzard Charles last night in Chicago.

"Or," Hurley says, "maybe even a bout with Charles." The Buford fight was Matthews' first venture into the heavyweight division. He gave 30 pounds, 177 to 207, but stopped the Oakland battler with a solid right to the stomach in 40 seconds of the third.

Views Of Sport

By RED SMITH

NEW YORK—When Happy Chandler took office as Baseball Commissioner, the game had not been involved in a major lawsuit since the early 1930s, when the late Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns and a violent adversary of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, unsuccessfully challenged the Commissioner's authority to enforce the rules regarding the farming out of a player named Bennett.

During Happy's administration, baseball was almost continuously in court. And now, as he dawdles in the doorway, reluctant to move beyond reach of his swivel chair, the game is hips-deep in assorted legal actions. There are pending suits by ball players and club owners challenging the reserve clause under the anti-trust laws, and suits by club and radio stations attacking the territorial limitations on broadcasts. Inquiries into baseball's business methods have been scheduled by the Department of Justice and by Congressional investigators. It would be unfair and inaccurate to say that Happy got baseball caught in the toils of the law. But it is a self-evident fact that he did not keep the game out of court, as Judge Landis did.

Smith

Football's House Relatively Clean

The several bills which have been introduced in Congress and the investigations which are proposed do not deal exclusively with baseball. They are concerned with all professional sports. The popular impression is that whatever can be said of baseball, player contracts can also be said of the agreements in professional football, that if baseball's reserve clause is illegal, football's is too.

This, it turns out, isn't necessarily so. Professional football has quietly undertaken to scrub up its business procedure.

Every annual contract in professional baseball includes an option on the player's services after expiration of the agreement. This is the reserve clause. It binds the player for his whole professional life, for although he may sign a new contract every year, each new contract contains a new option.

In the National Football League, the standard contract commits the player to a club for one season and gives the club an option on his services for the following season. But it is specifically provided that there shall be no further option. If a player then on player and club work on a year-to-year basis. It is up to the owner to satisfy the player each year in order to retain his services.

Investments Must Be Protected

Professional football feels it can operate successfully under this arrangement because the average playing career in this game is relatively short. Over a period of four or five years, the player and the club can agree upon a fair estimate of his value. During the time covered by the contract and option, the salary can't be cut; there is no provision in the contract for the 25 per cent reduction allowed in the baseball agreement.

Perhaps this would not be a practical arrangement in baseball. A football player comes to the Big League directly from college. His development up to that point has cost the club nothing. There is no expensive chain of minor league farms, supported for the sole purpose of cultivating material for the parent club. The rookie doesn't represent, as the baseball newcomer often does, a large investment of cash and time and effort which must be protected.

As in any other business, the professional football contract may be drawn for more than one year. If a player has exceptional value, his employer may sign him for three or five years. The Eagles, for instance, gave their agile halfback, Steven van Buren, a three-year contract.

Legal Complications Avoided

Although there is not a list of suspended players—no retaliatory measures have been taken against players who quit the National League to play in Canada—the contract gives Bert Bell, the Commissioner, disciplinary authority. He can suspend or expel individuals for conduct detrimental to the game.

The football people have also looked into the matter of federal regulations regarding broadcasting and telecasting games. They have been advised that if only two interested parties are involved—that is, if Jack Mara, of the New York Giants, and George Preston Marshall, of the Washington Redskins, agree on radio and television terms for a game between their teams—that's strictly kosher. But if a third party like the Yankees' Ted Collins for example, has a voice in the agreement, then it may become a conspiracy.

In short, the football people seem to have foreseen the possibility of legal complications and to have taken steps to avoid them. If odious comparisons are in order, they shall not be made here.

Solons Snare Lead In Ding-Dong Coast Race

Sacramento Solons replaced Seattle Rainiers in the Pacific Coast League driver's seat today following an eight-game holiday flurry of activity.

The Solons knocked tail-end San Francisco Seals twice, 9 to 7 and 7 to 3, while Seattle was splitting with Oakland. The Oaks won the first game 2 to 1, lost the nightcap 4 to 3 in eight innings.

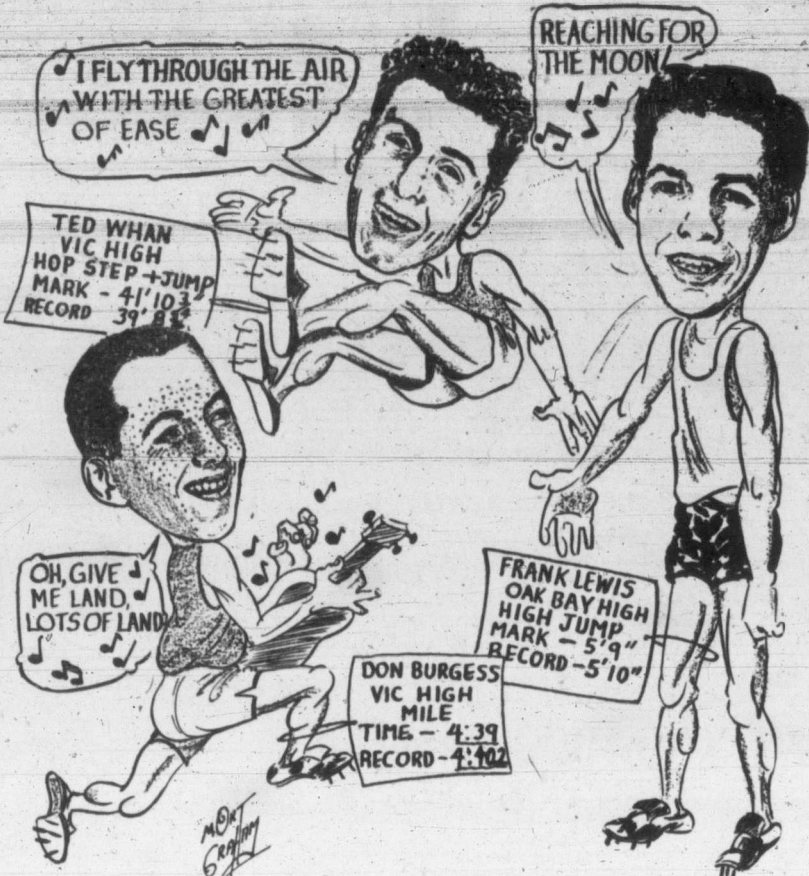

Hollywood Stars gained a split to remain in third place. They shut out San Diego Padres 4 to 0 in the first game but 40-year-old Guy Fletcher hurled the Padres to a 4 to 2 victory in the second.

Portland Beavers, leading the league only three weeks ago, sagged to sixth place, four games off the pace, by losing twice to Los Angeles Angels, 9 to 6 and 11 to 7. This despite Joe Brovia's three homers.

Don't Fence Me In, Neither

Singing typical theme songs, Vic High's Ted Whan and Don Burgess match the vocal efforts of Oak Bay's Frank Lewis as they ready for the B.C. high schools track meet, slated to open at the Vic High cinder track tomorrow at 2.30. Ukelele is inseparable part of miler Burgess, who considers the music box a lucky charm.

TRACK MEET ZONE CONTEST

Inauguration of a zone competition at the B.C. High School track and field meet was announced today by Laurie Wallace.

In addition to school championships, a trophy will be awarded by Birks for aggregate points compiled by schools in eight geographical zones. All high schools in the Victoria area will comprise one zone for purposes of the new competition.

Minor Boxla Schedule Set

Saturday will see the opening games of the pee wee and bantam lacrosse league at Stevenson Park. A pair of games in each division will inaugurate the season.

Anyone who is interested in lending a hand in score-keeping, coaching or care of equipment is asked to turn out to the park on Saturday morning.

Saturday's schedule follows:
9 a.m.—Pee Wee's Fernwood vs. Oak Bay.
9.45 a.m.—Saanic vs. Fairfield.

10.30 a.m.—Bantams' Fernwood vs. Oak Bay.

TIME OUT! By Jeff Keate

"What time will you be back exhausted and in an ugly mood?"

Alavevo! Alavevo! Alavevo vivo vum! Boom! Get a rat trap bigger than a cat trap! Boom! Get a rat trap bigger than a cat trap! Boom! Boom! Boom!

Caveman! Caveman! Siz-boom-bah! Vic High! Vic High! Rah! Rah! Rah!

That's one of the zany little verses which Mr. and Mrs. Victoria are going to be asked to yell at the top of their lungs at the B.C. high schools track meet at Vic High Stadium tomorrow and Saturday.

A literary effort born of the combined talents of Vic High's four young cheer leaders, it is an example of the yells which will appear on a sheet to be distributed in the stands.

Most of the yelling Friday afternoon will be done by a vociferous student body, but dads and moms will be asked to take up the refrain on Saturday. Cheer leader Marilyn Richards explains: "A lot of the kids have Saturday jobs and won't be on hand, so we just have to get the grownups yelling too."

So there you are. You'd better start memorizing now.

GAIS IN SHORTS

Marilyn is one of the three girls in the cheer leading corps. With Gerry Koski and Ann Armstrong she is excited about wearing shorts for the week-end; previously the girls have appeared in long-pleated skirts, sweaters and skull caps, all in purple and gold. Gerry Bilou, the member of the quartet, gazed down at his shanks and observed: "Guess I'll stick with slacks."

The meet climaxes a big season for the rooters, who won their jobs half on a student body vote after a demonstration of talent, and half on the recommendations of house captains.

Throughout the year they have appeared at sport functions of every description and worked hard to perfect their teamwork in leading yells.

Rehearsals are held in the big attic of the Fernwood Road School, with an occasional dress rehearsal on the grounds for the critical appraisal of their fellow students.

Tomorrow and Saturday they will give all they've got to help Vic High to victory.

Laurie Wallace was able to report arrangements nearly complete this morning. Legions among the Vancouver schools still had to send full lists of entrants, and the draw for events will be made-up late tonight or tomorrow morning.

MAXIM NO MATCH FOR CHARLES

Champ Goes Through Brisk Drill

CHICAGO (AP) — Ezzard Charles, heavyweight champion of the world, is positive light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim wants no more ring traffic with him.

Maxim is of the same opinion, too, after absorbing a one-sided thrashing by Charles at the Chicago Stadium last night. It was their fourth engagement with Charles winner of them all.

Charles, making the eighth defence of his crown, won the unanimous verdict of referee Frank Gilmer, two judges and the bored approval of 7,226 spectators in pasting Maxim for 15 rounds.

Despite the poor crowd, Charles pocketed a $62,147.60 paycheck, thanks to a $100,000 television purse. Maxim got $31,073 for his losing effort.

At the finish, Maxim was a reeling, tired, exhausted fighter. His right eye was swelling shut and he was bleeding from a cut under the eye and above it. Charles was unmarked and breathing no harder than if he had a brisk drill.

Maxim's counters were feeble and he clinched continuously. He seemed to be on the verge of collapse several times, but gamely remained on his feet until the final gong. He was treated with oxygen intermittently for 45 minutes in the dressing room after the fight and appeared to be in an exhausted condition.

Crestfallen Maxim now is scheduled to risk his 175-pound title against Chicago's Bob Satterfield in the Stadium June 27. But there was some question today of whether he would recuperate sufficiently to fulfill that engagement.

Sons Take Verbal Lashing As Well

Flamboyant Rocks Run Riot Over Nanaimo Squad

By LANCE WHITTAKER

"Why don't they send Bill Andrews down to score a goal? He's one of the four men Menzies said made up the Shamrock team."

Remarks like that are second nature to the tenants of terrible Section Seven, and they poured out in a veritable blizzard at the Memorial Arena last night as the Shamrocks snowed under Nanaimo Native Sons 18 to 4 to regain top place in the Intercity Lacrosse League standings.

Lloyd Steele, winning visibly when a Sevensman leaned over the Sons' box and shouted, "Now you know what Fergie's snowshoes are for."

All in all, Section Seven's lacrosse fans are well up to the standard set by those who inhabited the seats through the hockey season. As a matter of fact, they're the same fans, if you can judge by the invective. The section provides wonderful surroundings for a sport scribe in search of new adjectives, much more inspiring than the arid atmosphere of the press box.

BASIC ENGLISH

For instance there was Granlie Reid, a newcomer to Section Seven, seeing her first boxla game in more than 70 years of living.

"Guts," said Granlie. "That curly-headed little fellow has just got plain old-fashioned guts."

That was in the second quarter, when Archie Browning came back after being dropped like a stone when he was hit on the ear by a bull-like shot driven through a maze of players by Norm Baker.

The Rocks were out in front 8 to 1 at that point, and it looked as though Browning could afford to take the rest of the game off.

But Archie was out there, proving that he likes boxla better than sleep; for no better excuse for hitting the sack ever existed than the jolt that shot gave the little guy.

He stayed around until the end, matching hat tricks with Art Green and Baker himself in a last-period drive that had every last fan pulling for him.

FAST START

The dumping the Irish handed Nanaimo can't be accounted for on the basis of "the best versus the worst" team in the league.

Last night's Rocks might have done the same, or worse, to the Combines or Commandos. Nanaimo put up a good, scrappy game but Ferguson's men were hot from the start, piling up markers to blank the opposition completely in the first frame.

In the middle stanzas the up-landers pulled their defence tighter and Fred Fulla rose to top form to hold the locals to a 4-to-2 edge in the second quarter and a single-goal 3-to-2 margin in the third.

At the last it was condition again, as the Victoria squad piled up six more unanswered tallies even while they appeared occasionally to be stalling.

As usual—it was difficult to pick stars. Every man but Andrews and McCaghey got on the score-board; Larry Booth made a promising start; Bob Monaghan showed the terrific drive that made him a standout last year, and Whitey Severson was just—well, Whitey Severson.

The Rocks are on top now and Combines will have to win from Commandos tonight to head them off. Archie Browning is alongside Combines' Jim Anderson in the individual scoring. Next game for the Irish is at Nanaimo Saturday, and some heavy thinking on strategy is indicated if Sons hope to hold Ferguson's boys.

FLAKE SHOTS: The sizeable Nanaimo fan crowd got a kick out of the long shots that big Bill Seward burned in on Bill Andrews; one went right through the net. . . . Seward is just as effective on defence. He crossed-checked Art Green, undetected, at

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor.

Bill just glared over the rim of his heavy-rimmed spectacles as we entered the office. "What the d— do you want?" he said. It was then we knew we were welcome. Bill looked down and completed his jottings—students tests no doubt—then peered over the glasses once again as we picked a seat among the badminton racquets that littered a table near the wall in that little room off the men's washroom in Victoria High School.

Finally Bill tossed his pencil on the table, removed his glasses as though contemplating what to say to an alumnus just up, visiting the school on the occasion of its 75th anniversary propped his elbows on the desk and repeated: "Yeh, what brings you up here?"

A good question, but we had a better one. "The best athlete in my time at Vic High?" Bill said. "There's no doubt about it in my mind. It's Porky Andrews. He could do everything and do it well. He didn't just play at a game or sport, he 'played' the game as it should be played."

And if anyone should know who the greatest athlete was to ever wear the purple and gold of Vic High—in the past 25 years—it is Bill Roper.

Mellow, But Still The Boss

Bill is mellowed now. Twenty-four and a half years at the same stand have taken some of the acridness out of the former British Army disciplinarian, but, and old grads will hearken to this, when Bill yelled, everyone used to snap to the bit. But despite his gruffness, Bill never carried a grudge. Once a student left the gym floor any differences he may have had with Roper were forgotten—at least by Bill.

Well, this is Bill's last year at Vic High. A quarter of a century is a long time and Bill is looking forward to a "home" this summer. After that, it's good-bye Vic High.

In those 25 years Bill had seen a lot of great athletes come and go, but when we checked the records, we found old "acid mouth" was right. George "Porky" Andrews was the only name that graced the E. B. Paul Challenge Cup three times since the year '13.

Over that stretch of half the life of Victoria High School other illustrious names included Bill Cutler, Eric McCallum, Cecil Hay, J. R. Naden, Bill Oliver, Ray Kersey, Art Chapman, Muzz Patrick, Bill Dale, Hank Rowe, just to name a few; and in modern times, Jim Ranson, Tommy Joyce, Ralph Anderson, Gordie Pynn, Cedric Robb and Al Boyd.

Art Chapman had taken the honors twice as had Muzz Patrick. Then there was Len Nichols, a two-time winner in 1926-27. Len is now principal at Parksville High School.

And this year's winner of the trophy, symbolic of the senior boys' championship—Ted Whan, of whom Roper says "has the making to be one of the best."

Beverly Vaio—Was She The Best?

Not to be overshadowed by the boys, there were some pretty fair of limb and body in the feminine realm. Principal Harry Smith remembered most of them and, as he rubbed a gnarled hand through his bushy eyebrows, you could see him going back into history, a history that also goes back to 1914.

Beverly Vaio got Harry's nod as the cream of the fair sex. But there was also Hope Leeming who went on to become a Dominion tennis champion; Darlene Woodburn, a three-time winner; Virginia Hall (Mrs. Hec McNeil), a crack sprinter; Vivienne Charlton, wife of Pacific Club's Jack Chadwick; Mary Welch, 1925 and 1926 champion; Elaine Barry, spouse of basketballer Johnny Clark; Victoria Rennie (Mrs. Jack Gismore); Eva Mason, Audrey Lock, Peggy Brindle, Thelma Whyte, Ilma Simpson, Maxine Ewart.

We've mentioned just a few. There are many more such as Dick Chungranes, Dick Surpliss, Enocott-Jones, Teresa Lee Warner, Doreen Beere, Diane Heaney—they've all contributed much to Vic High's glory.

Porky And Vic High's Future

But all in all, doesn't it seem fitting that on the occasion of the school's diamond jubilee, that the three-year-old provincial inter-high championships are coming to the city this week-end for the first time, that Bill Roper, who has lived through the last one-third of that span with the present generation is retiring, and that Vic High now has one of the finest cinder tracks in the province.

Yes, it should be a great meet this week-end. Vic High is proud of its past, prouder of its present and eagerly looking forward to the future.

As Bill Roper says: "Sports go in a cycle and athletics are on the upgrade once again. I won't be here to see it, but I look for Vic High to produce some great talent in the next few seasons, especially if Porky Andrews accepts the position of assistant director of physical education."

"There's one thing about Porky. He can do anything the students can do, and he can do it better than most of 'em. Kids look up to a guy like that."

BEVENS PUTS STOP TO CAP WIN STREAK

Well, Vancouver Caplanos figured, they couldn't have lost to a better guy.

Bill Bevens, the former New York Yankee now trying a comeback with Salem Senators, finally halted Caps' Western International League winning streak at 15 games last night by throwing a 6 to 4 victory.

Bevens, in fact, cut off two streaks. His mound opponent was Bob Snyder, who had won nine straight against no defeats.

Caps established a league record—Tuesday—with their 14th consecutive victory. They stretched the skein to 15 by winning the first game of yesterday's doubleheader 1 to 0 on Charley Mead's triple and Reno Cheso's double in the sixth inning.

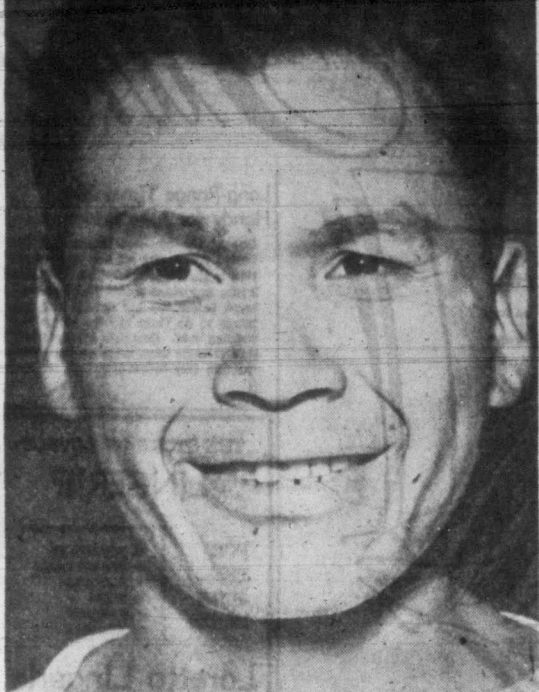

Salem collected all their second-game runs in the first and third innings and Bevens was never in serious trouble the rest of the way.

Spokane got by Yakima 7 to 5 in the first game but lost 12 to 8 in the 10-inning nightcap. Tom O'Laughlin brought in two runs in the extra inning with a double and Jerry Zuvela scored two more with his second homer.

Tri-City Braves beat Wenatchee Chiefs 6 to 3 in the opener; Chiefs won the second game 6 to 2.

Captains All-Star Team

Herman Henry, brilliant strategist of Duncan's Native Sons, has been chosen captain of the island all-star soccer eleven which will meet the touring Fulham side June 7. Manager Tommy Restell confirmed Henry's appointment as captain after the rep squad had been put through a grueling two-hour workout at Macdonald Park last night. Restell will pitch the "Probables" against the "Possibles" at Macdonald Park Saturday afternoon. Slated to star at 2.30, the game will be occasion for the selection committee to make a final choice of the 14 men to make the rep line-up.

Barrett Loser As A's Split Twin Bill

Big John Marshall goes to the mound for Victoria Athletics in Tacoma tonight as the A's strive to square their four-game series with the Tigers.

A repeat on a joint performance by Bill Osborn and John Tierney in yesterday's first half of a twin bill would do the trick. Lilio Marcucci and Gene Thompson added batting punch to the workmanlike hurling of the two second stringers to give the A's an extra inning 3 to 2 victory.

The nightcap, charged to manager Dick Barrett, went to the Tigers, 7 to 6.

The split bill leaves the A's in the basement and looking forward to an eight-game stand at home to pull them up off the floor. They arrive in Victoria tomorrow to host the Wenatchee Chiefs.

MARCUCCI SHINES
The beetle-browed Marcucci, driving in two runs with a single and a double, gave A's an edge over Tacoma in the early innings yesterday afternoon, but the Tigers came back to tie it up with singletons in the fifth and sixth.

Gene Thompson's single in the tenth, driving in Mary Diercks, was the ball game. John Tierney, relieving Osborn in the final stanza, retired the side without trouble.

Marcucci did it again in the evening game, driving in two runs in the first frame. Bill White added another, but Tigers matched the score in their half and it stayed that way until the third.

Mount Douglas Shares Prep Softball Lead

Mount Douglas defeated Oak Bay High 12 to 6 Tuesday to move into a first-place tie in the Junior Softball League with Mount View, who lost a heart-breaker to Esquimalt 13 to 12.

Central lost their chance to gain when the Vic High Blacks handed them their second straight loss, 6 to 3. The Vic High Golds lost to Oak Bay One, 10 to 6.

At Esquimalt High School, Mount View dropped into a first-place tie when the home team exploded for four runs in the bottom half of the last inning after they had plated 3 runs to start the frame and break a 9 to 9 tie.

Mount View had previously tied the game after being behind 8 to 4.

At Mount Doug the home team scored five times in the second inning and four times in the fourth inning on a grand slam home run by Al Thomson. Showers homered for the Bays.

Sox Pull Away From Yankees

14-Game Winning Streak Five Shy Of League Mark

The super-charged Chicago White Sox, a 30 to 1 shot in April, figure no worse than even money to win the American League pennant—based on Memorial Day barometers.

The Sox streaked to their 13th and 14th successive victories yesterday sweeping a holiday doubleheader from St. Louis Browns 5 to 2 and 8 to 1 before 34,856 fans. The St. Louis clean-up, coupled with Boston's two triumphs over New York, opened Chicago's first-place margin over the Yankees to two full games.

The Sox, idle today, begin a 13-game home stand against the eastern clubs tomorrow. They are only five shy of the league record of 19 straight victories, first set by themselves in 1906 and later tied by the Yankees in 1947.

STEPHENS HERO

Vern Stephens won the opener for the Red Sox, blasting a home run in the 15th inning for a 11 to 10 thriller. Stephens also batted in a couple in a five-run seventh inning rally that won the second game, 9 to 4, and increased Boston's winning streak to 10 straight.

St. Louis Cardinals cut Brooklyn's National League lead to 1½ games with 4 to 3 and 7 to 3 triumphs over Pittsburgh as the Dodgers were held even in two games with Philadelphia. The Phillies came back to win the second game 9 to 5 behind Bubba Church's 12th pitching after Don Newcombe had outpitched Robin Roberts 5 to 3 in the opener.

Memorial Day leaders during the last 50 years have held on to win the flag 27 times in the American League.

National League-holiday leaders did not fare as well. Only 23 have gone on to win since 1901.

Billy Pierce and Randy Gumpert pitched the victories for Chicago which now boasts 18 completed jobs in 36 games (one tie). In the Red Sox rout of the Yankees, Ted Williams collected seven hits, including a homer, triple and three doubles and batted in five runs to raise his league-leading total to 42 and his batting average to .321.

HERNANDEZ, HOLDER UNBEATEN

Snyder Stopped In Bid For W.I.L. Mound Mark

TACOMA (AP)—Racking up Nos. 8 and 9 in a row last week, Vancouver's Bob Snyder added to his lead in the Western International League pitching race but was stopped in his bid for the record of consecutive mound triumphs when beaten last night at Salem.

Three W-I hurlers, Frank Nelson of Spokane in 1948, Sandy Robertson of Vancouver in 1949 and Bob Kerrigan of Tacoma in 1950, won 12 straight, the mark which Snyder sought.

Unbeaten but far behind Snyder in total triumphs are Vancouver's Pete Hernandez and Carl Gunnarson and Spokane's Jim Holder, each with 5-0 records, while Dick Bishop of Spokane is next in line with 6-1.

Three left-handers, Tom Breisinger of Wenatchee with 56, Bob Schulte of Tacoma with 47 and Jim Propst of Victoria with 43, are the leading strikeout artists. A right-hander, John Marshall of Victoria, continues to set the pace in the issuance of walks with 59.

The leaders, as released from the office of Robert B. Abel, league president, follow:

For 28 years every driver in the race has bought Firestone Tires because no driver is willing to risk his life or chances of victory on anything less than the safest tires money can buy. Remember that fact next time you buy tires. Protect the lives of your family on Canada's No. 1 Tire—Firestone—first for safety; first for long mileage.

LEE WALLARD wins at Indianapolis Speedway at record-breaking speed of 126.244 miles per hour!

Wismer Hints Hospital Insurance Will Require Added Financial Aid

First suggestion from a member of the government that hospital insurance financing will have to get another assist from the Provincial Treasury was heard Wednesday night at Langford. Attorney-General Gordon Wismer told close to 150 members of the Liberal party, attending the annual meeting of the Esquimalt Provincial Liberal Association:

"I think there will have to be a larger impact on the treasury."

He was talking about the work of the Legislature's special committee named at the last session of the House to study the hospital insurance question and make recommendations at the 1952 session on a more equitable method of financing the scheme.

Mr. Wismer said he was satisfied the committee will "come up" with a satisfactory prescription for the ills of the insurance service.

He thought one of the vital problems the committee had to solve was that of people living on low fixed incomes, and low wage-earners who could not afford to pay existing premiums.

"We have said we will not sue these people for non-payment of premiums, but I agree, that is not good enough," Mr. Wismer stated.

GIVES FIGHTING TALK

The Attorney-General gave a fighting speech in which he flayed the C.C.F. for attempting to make "political capital" from hospital insurance.

He said Opposition Leader Harold Winch was impractical, because he had no experience in government, when he advocated paying hospital insurance deficits from surplus revenue.

"NO EASY WAY OUT"

"There's no easy way out," said Mr. Wismer. "We the people have got to pay for hospital insurance if we want it."

The Attorney-General was at his best when he referred to Coalition, agreeing with Premier Johnson and Finance Minister Anscomb that the "union" must continue during the life of the present Legislature.

Mr. Anscomb had served notice that Coalition would be dissolved at the next general election, though, and "we can't sit back now and not get ready when we know it's going to be a straight fight."

He urged Liberals to start preparations at once to spread the Liberal story.

"Liberals were active already, he agreed, and they 'realized their responsibilities in the coming years—in the coming months perhaps.'"

"We are in a fortunate position," he said. "Liberals have confidence in their Federal leader. And there is no split between provincial Liberals and Federal Liberals as there is in another party."

Mr. Wismer said he did not mean the Liberal party would break Coalition when he suggested in a recent speech in the Interior there might be an election earlier than expected.

"Mr. Anscomb had served notice of the end of Coalition and I was approaching the problem realistically," he said.

Mr. Wismer declared he could not agree with Mr. Anscomb when the Tory party leader referred to hospital insurance as an experiment in Socialism.

"That shows the fundamental difference in the thinking of Liberals and Conservatives," he said.

Liberals believed the furtherance of social services such as hospital insurance, old age pensions, mothers' allowances and the like was one of the proper rules of free enterprise.

Honor Victoria Teachers

For their contribution to kindergarten and primary grade teaching, Miss Marian James, left, supervisor of kindergarten and primary education in Greater Victoria schools, and Miss Eleanor Bell of Monterey elementary, became two of the first Canadian teachers to be invited to join Delta Kappa Gamma, an educational honor society for teachers in the United States seeking to extend its scope to Canada. Miss Muriel Anderson, Victoria teacher who died earlier this month, was honored posthumously.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

If South had bid three no-trump instead of four spades he would have made his contract without the slightest difficulty. This would have been a poor bid, however, if his partner happened to have the ace of diamonds instead of the ace of hearts.

In situations of this kind it usually pays to bid game in the major suit. The play for game is usually just as good, sometimes better; and the major suit is usually far safer against a bad set.

West opened the king of hearts, and South played low from the dummy. East signalled enthusiastically with the ten of hearts, knowing that this signal would clarify the situation for West (if necessary) by denying the jack.

Here we might take a moment out to explain that point. A player who can afford to signal with the ten could equally well afford to signal with the jack if he had trick. This would force the enemy to lead diamonds. If West led the suit, all would be well; if East led diamonds, the location of the ace would be decisive.

This plan would have worked against "no-trump" defence. South would lead three trumps, and West would then take the clubs and put West in with a heart to begin the diamonds.

However, when South led the second round of trumps West rose to the occasion by discarding the jack of hearts. Eventually, therefore, East got the lead with the third round of hearts. East was thus able to begin the diamonds and set the contract.

that card. Conventionally, a player who signals with a high card uses the highest card he can afford. If the highest card he can afford is the ten, he cannot have the jack.

As it happened, West had the jack of hearts and could continue hearts without danger. When West led the queen of hearts dummy won with the ace.

South had to play for the ace of diamonds onside or for West to begin the diamonds. He planned to draw trumps, run the three clubs, and then give up a heart

Opposition Wants Hungry India Fed

Pearson Replies Offer Of Second Grade Wheat, Free, Twice Refused

OTTAWA (CP)—Gordon Graydon (P.C., Peel, Ont.) told the government yesterday "time is running out" for Canadian help in India's famine. He was advised in return that India has declined a second offer of Canadian low-grade wheat, this time as an outright gift.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said the Government now is canvassing the possibilities of sending special health foods and of diverting to India better-grade wheat earmarked for other countries.

No decisions have been reached, he said in the Commons, but both possibilities are under active consideration. The Minister also said the Government would gladly help any private bodies desiring to send food or other supplies.

Mr. Graydon, seizing the lever of a Government supply motion to raise the subject, said there is great and growing concern in Canada "as to whether we are missing a challenging opportunity" to improve relations with the Orient by failing to send relief to a country where millions might die of hunger.

AGAIN DECLINED

Mr. Pearson, replying, recalled India's decision not to accept an offer to send low-grade wheat as part of Canada's contribution under the Colombo plan. A day or so ago, New Delhi declined a second offer, this time to make low-grade wheat—the only kind now available without depriving regular overseas customers of deliveries—available free as a gift to be used in the famine areas without any connection with the Colombo plan.

In both cases, India's reply was that she would rather wait and see if better-grade wheat becomes available later this year when another crop is harvested. The House left the discussion of the Indian situation to the two foreign affairs experts and devoted its most prolonged debate to the bill to overhaul the Post Office Act for the first time in years.

The big issue there revolved around charges by members of all three parties in opposition that patronage—rewards for loyalty to the Liberal party—plays a major if not dominant role in appointment of a lot of postmasters across the country.

June—Month of Beautiful Brides

The month for orange blossoms and beautiful June brides is fast approaching, and with it all the traditional customs that surround marriage.

A wedding is a momentous event, something to be remembered and forever cherished. Every member of the wedding party has traditional responsibility.

The bridegroom must select the best man and ushers. He must select flowers for the bride, bride's mother, his own mother, boutonnières for the ushers, bride's father and his father. The wedding ring, license and fees are all his responsibility.

To the best man falls the endless task of looking after the bride and groom's going away luggage, taking care of any last-minute details and, of course, making sure the groom arrives at the church in time.

A family friend or the minister may make the wedding toast to the bride; he is responded to by the groom.

After the wedding, the bride may throw her bouquet to her attendants. Legend has it that the lucky girl who catches it will be the next wed.

The Date is Set

... and Jean Burns' Bridal Section is complete with gowns of shimmering beauty for the Bride and her attendants.

Inflation Second Worst

WINNIPEG (C)—Next to war the greatest hazard confronting Canadians is the continuing erosion of the purchasing power of the dollar, H. R. Stephenson, president of the Crown Life Insurance Co. of Toronto, said Wednesday.

Here for the annual three-day meeting of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association he addressed a Rotary club.

"It is a terrible injustice to all holders of government bonds, mortgages, retirement allowances, preferred stocks, bank deposits, life insurance and all other money contracts that the dollar today will buy only the same as 55 cents in prewar days," he said.

Liberals Agree To Joint Nomination

Go Along With Coalition For Esquimalt By-Election

First hurdle has been jumped in the knotty Esquimalt by-election race.

Liberals of the riding agreed at their annual general meeting at Langford Wednesday night to the holding of a joint nomination convention with the Conservatives to name a candidate.

The Tories have not reached this point yet, and some Liberals attending the meeting suggested their "partners" in Coalition might want "to go it alone."

"That would be all right with me," said Stanley Morrow, former president and prominent worker in the Esquimalt Liberal organization. "We could then make our own arrangements. But I think we should go with our Premier and agree to continue Coalition until the next general election."

TROUBLE AREA

Esquimalt has long been the main trouble area in Coalition. Liberals and Conservatives have fought bitterly over representation. E. V. Finland, a Conservative, held the seat at the time of the formation of Coalition. But it went to the Liberals when Mr. Beard was chosen.

Decision to hold a joint nomination convention with both parties having the same voting strength followed a speech by Attorney-General Gordon Wismer in which he said it would be bad for the Liberal Party and for the province to split Coalition now.

The Conservatives had stated definitely it will be a straight party fight at the next general election, Mr. Wismer said. "So we know where we stand; meanwhile Coalition should continue because the term to which the people elected the Coalition government is not over."

NORTHERN FORESTS

Some of the largest and most valuable timber forests of the world are north of latitude 60 degrees. Mining and fishing industries also flourish there.

Estevan To Set Up New Day Beacons

The newly-overhauled government-operated lighthouse tender Estevan today was carrying a heavy load of equipment and supplies with her on her current assignment in northern waters of Vancouver Island.

The ship has a month-long work schedule mapped out for her, which includes setting up several new day beacons. The Estevan left here Tuesday.

Nehru Advances Bill To Curb Press Freedom

NEW DELHI (Reuters).—Prime Minister Nehru cleared the first hurdle today with his bill to impose "reasonable" curbs of free speech in India.

Parliament accorded him a 246 to 14 vote in favor of getting on with the discussion of the bill in clause-by-clause debate. The bill will amend the constitution to allow the Government to rein in comment considered prejudicial to public order and friendly relations with foreign states. But any ban brought under it must be reasonable and the courts shall decide disputed cases. Final vote on the bill is expected Saturday.

"The trouble is," says young Garry, "that I kicked with a scissor kick when I shoulda kicked with a frog kick. So I didn't make it. I'll have to try it again." And that's the explanation of what happened to Garry in the Red Cross swimming and water safety test at the Crystal Garden this week.

Garry had lots of company. The Red Cross tests aren't pushovers for young swimmers. It isn't the intention of the organization to make them easy. Al Thiesen, supervisor and examiner, is quite emphatic on the point.

"We set the standards high and we'll keep them that way," he says. "If we didn't, the awards would be cheapened, and what's the use of an award anyone can get?" To a lot of stuffy old codgers like me, that makes good listening. We're ready to give the kids "A" for effort, but we'd like them to know that it's performance that wins the rewards. It might be too easy, otherwise, for them to think that they were trying hard, when they just weren't trying hard enough.

THIESSEN AND HIS assistant, Bob Stangroom, spent a busy time at the Garden, testing. They weren't mean or tough in their judgments, but they let the youngsters know that there were right and wrong ways to do things. The candidates for certificates had to swim crawl when the rules called for that stroke, breaststroke with the orthodox leg action, when that was prescribed, and the proper style of backstroke when it was required. The minnows seemed satisfied. They saw the fairness of the deal and appreciated it. They'll think more of their awards than if they'd simply floated through.

Numbers of the youngsters who weren't successful still won't have anything to worry about. In the course of the Victoria schools' swim classes, a good percentage of them have become competent to the extent that they could look after themselves if they fell off a raft or out of a boat. Others have overcome water-shyness and will get their fins with a little parental or other adult encouragement at water resorts this year.

GEORGE GRANT, Greater Victoria schools physical education supervisor, and his teaching helpers have done a good job with the small fry. But it might be smart for parents to go down to the pool in the next week or two and see how well their children handle themselves in the water. For some a visit would be an agreeable surprise. They'll be delighted with the progress junior has made. Others may notice that the kid who talks like Weismuller doesn't swim like him, and needs a little more help before he can look after himself when he's in over his head.

Whether or not you have a son or daughter of your own at the Garden these days, it's worth a visit, just to see how young Victoria frolics in the water. They're not all stars, but there are an amazing number who seem almost as much at home in the water as young seals.

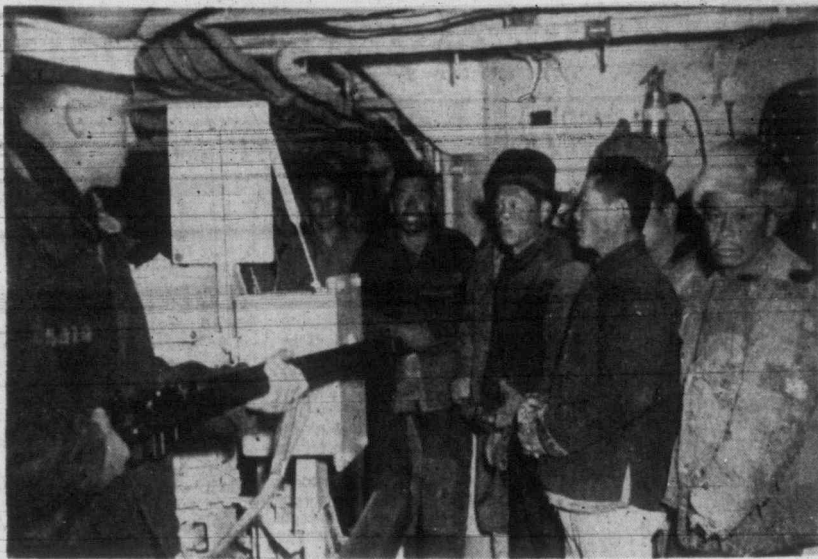

THE LOCAL tadpoles had a little competition this week. Up from San Francisco came a six and one-half year old with a father and mother who attended the medical convention. While they took in the sessions, they turned the boy over to the Garden pool attendants, and he splashed the hours away at the deep end.

Six and a half seems young for a child to have such competency and confidence in the water. There are probably a dozen or so Victoria kiddies who could duplicate the performance. At that age, once they've overcome nervousness, there isn't anything to stop them from learning to swim. Archie McKinnon and Fred Ellison have turned them out that age and lower, and there's a popular belief that some Polynesian mothers make a ritual of teaching their newborn to swim. Handy, that. Saves on the laundry.

THE PRIMARY objective of the Red Cross and the Victoria schools classes is to teach as many as possible to swim as well as they can through group activity. Their concern isn't particularly the development of Olympic champions. At the same time they set the beginners on the road to what may be success in competitive swimming.

This year the Victoria Times is trying to help a few of them further along. Through a dozen membership in the Flying Y Swim Club for the most promising members of the school classes, this newspaper will put them under Canada's Olympic coach. That should help them to push on toward championships, though progress will depend on the membership winners as much as their coach.

Behind the scheme is the idea that the rewards will stimulate more youngsters to try a little harder, to be better than they would be without a personal objective. It may help some, too, to overcome the trouble Garry encountered when he took his Red Cross test this week.

CLIFFORD KIRKHAM

Kirkham Named At Esquimalt

A View Royal resident has been elected president of the Esquimalt District Provincial Liberal Association.

Clifford Kirkham was chosen unanimously at the annual meeting at Langford Wednesday night to succeed Andrew Motherwell, Cobble Hill, as head of the association.

Mr. Motherwell declined nomination for re-election. Esquimalt riding is one of the most wide-spread in the province. It covers Esquimalt township, Colwood, Langford, Sooke, Jordan River, Port Renfrew, Cobble Hill and linking districts. Other officers elected: Roy Wellwood, Esquimalt, first vice-president; D. J. DeRoche, Sooke, second vice-president; B. F. Day, M.B.E., View Royal, secretary-treasurer; Ernest H. Emery, Colwood, auditor.

Among resolutions passed at the meeting was one from Langford asking for an adjustment in hospital insurance premium rates for persons living on fixed low income.

CENSUS OPENS TOMORROW

Ask Public Co-Operate In Giving Information

Seventy-three enumerators will begin knocking on doors in the Victoria riding tomorrow as Canada's ninth decennial census gets under way.

Arthur J. Burns, local census commissioner, requested that residents be prepared for the census man so that he can collect quick and accurate information without loss of time. The information given the enumerator will be kept in strict confidence and only used for statistics, he said.

A census of population, housing and distribution (wholesale and retail trade and services) as well as a census on religion and salaries, will be taken by enumerators, Mr. Burns said.

TO MAKE CHECK Mr. Burns said the census will be checked by himself with the help of field supervisors to ensure that the census is as accurate as possible.

Mr. Burns estimated that an enumerator should take no longer than 20 minutes to gather necessary information from one family.

"If the public co-operates, all available information will be collected by June 21, the date when the census is scheduled to cease," Mr. Burns said.

Mr. Burns requested people who were leaving on trips during the next two weeks to co-operate with the enumerators by informing his office of their departure.

Examiners Named For Music Tests Dr. Harold W. Rhodes, well-known organist, pianist and composer, and Henry Haverlag, conductor and festival adjudicator, have been appointed to conduct the music examinations here this year. It was announced by the associate board of the Royal Schools of Music.

Examinations here will begin June 11 at Newstead Hall, Fort Street.

Letters have been sent to the following firms: Crowe Gonnason Ltd., McCarter Shingle Co., Horton Cedar Manufacturing Co., B.C. Forest Products Ltd., Moore-Whitlington Lumber Co., Sidney Roofing, Standard Steam Laundry, Drysdale Sash and Door.

Possibility that an anti-smoke board, similar to one set up in Vancouver, may evolve has been raised in civic circles.

In the meantime, a letter of protest was received at City Hall today from Hugh Sloan, 517 Cecilia Road, complaining of the wood soot particles from a nearby mill smokestack.

He said it was impossible to keep his place free from soot. "It is that tall smokestack which can be seen from all over town," he wrote. "This is the one that does the damage."

13 Slick Craft Start In Tough Ocean Race

Thirteen of the finest sailboats on the Pacific Coast pointed their long, sharp noses toward the southwest at 11 this morning and set sail for the annual return race to Swiftsure Light, anchored in the Pacific Ocean, 20 miles off Cape Flattery.

The race, which dates back to 1930, was begun this year just off Victoria's breakwater. A starting gun was fired and a red flag broke out aboard the navy tug Glendevon to mark the beginning of the race. The thirteen entries sailed between the anchored tug and the Brochie Ledge beacon and were officially sent on their way.

The same line will serve as the finish of the race after the competing boats have covered the 126-mile course. Besides the Buccaneer, there is only one other B.C. entry. That is the Elusive, owned by Bill Morrow, of Vancouver. The Elusive, smallest of all the entries, has a crew of four men and one woman aboard.

The Buccaneer's crew consists of owner Wallace, his son, John, and Jack Lindsay, Ned Ash and Capt. W. H. B. Holmes. Other ships in the race are: Charles Frisbie's Alotola, Seattle; Ray Cook's Circe, Seattle; Herb Day's Ono, Seattle; Chris Goodhope's Zorda, Seattle; Dr. G. Teats' Reverie, Seattle; and Harbaine Munroe's Nautilus III, Tacoma.

The ships are expected to finish either Friday night or Saturday morning.

BLOOD DONORS Since the Red Cross blood transfusion service began in 1947 about 400,000 bottles of blood have been collected in Canada. The big Maruffa, largest and most highly rated of all the entries by the official handicappers, soon whipped through the centre of the closely-bunched field to lead the way. The Maruffa, owned by John Graham, Seattle, has a crew of 12.

AMORITA FAVORITE Rated as favorite in the race by yachting men is the 46-foot sloop Amorita, owned by Dr. Carl Jensen, Seattle. Two years ago, the Amorita finished fourth in the Swiftsure classic.

Another top contender is the Dorade, owned by Franklin Eddy, Seattle. The Dorade once set a record in crossing the Atlantic from Spain to New York.

A local light wind from the south-southwest sent the boats away from the starting line, but across the strait a 16-mile-an-hour wind from the west-nor'west was blowing.

This year's race marks the first time since the early years of the event that both the start and finish of the contest has been in Victoria.

Besides the Buccaneer, there is only one other B.C. entry. That is the Elusive, owned by Bill Morrow, of Vancouver. The Elusive, smallest of all the entries, has a crew of four men and one woman aboard.

The Buccaneer's crew consists of owner Wallace, his son, John, and Jack Lindsay, Ned Ash and Capt. W. H. B. Holmes.

Other ships in the race are: Charles Frisbie's Alotola, Seattle; Ray Cook's Circe, Seattle; Herb Day's Ono, Seattle; Chris Goodhope's Zorda, Seattle; Dr. G. Teats' Reverie, Seattle; and Harbaine Munroe's Nautilus III, Tacoma.

B.C. TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS INCREASE IN FEBRUARY

February was a bad month on the highways of British Columbia, it was reported today by the Motor Vehicle Branch of the Attorney-General's Department.

There were increases in the number of accidents, number of persons injured, deaths, and in property damage resulting from traffic mishaps.

Accidents were up from 1,409 in February last year to 1,529 and there were 166 more people injured—389.

There were 15 deaths as compared to 10 in February, 1950, in 10 different accidents. The 10 deaths last year occurred in nine accidents.

The statisticians of the motor vehicle branch estimated property damage in the accidents at $386,250 which was $136,619 more than in the corresponding month of last year.

Victoria Business Men Ask New Postal Rate

Ottawa is being pressed by Victoria businessmen to establish a uniform postal rate for Greater Victoria and surrounding urban areas, it was learned today.

Under the present system, a three and four-cent differential exists between certain areas of Greater Victoria. In some cases there is no way of knowing whether three or four cents postage is required.

Equalization plan now being discussed in Ottawa was first advocated here last November by Saanich M.L.A. Arthur Ash in a speech to the North Saanich Association at Sidney. He spoke for the extension of the three-cent city postage rate to all of Saanich and Sidney.

Mr. Ash said merchants and others sent out many letters to the Saanich and Sidney district bearing three-cent stamps, with the result that recipients were often forced to pay a penalty of two cents for their mail.

"At present," said Mr. Ash, "the greater part of Saanich must pay a four-cent rate for local mail, while Victoria and immediate suburbs need only pay three cents."

The Saanich member said he had been given to understand

Would Delay Action On Arena Rental

Reports that the Memorial Arena Commission, two of whose members retire June 2, will meet tonight and may consider action on renewal of rental of the arena to Lester Patrick, caused concern in some civic circles today.

"It is the feeling of some of the council that the commission should make no commitments until the new members are installed," said one alderman.

Rental of the arena to Mr. Patrick is the arena's biggest contract and the alderman felt the hands of the new commission should not be bound.

Lamps With Fluffy Skirts
Others Of Bright Tartans!

By PENNY SAVER

Stiffened net over a flaring plastic skirt with rows of fluffy ruffles at the hemline and a single row at the waist... whoops, my dears, I've forgotten it's not a skirt to wear, but one to be used as a lamp shade! For heaven's sakes, says you, what next?

Well, I can hardly blame you, I do come up with wild and woolly novelties. This type of shade is ideal for the teen-ager who's duty it is to look after her own bedroom. The lamp is easily dusted, and with slightly damp cloth will come sparkling through after a shine-up job. In pastel blue and white there may be more of the pink, later... the shades are marked at $3.25.

In this identical style, without net overskirt, is the tartan number. A pet if I ever did see one.

Salt Spring—Sum of $100 was voted to community dental clinic, it was reported by the treasurer, when Salt Spring Island P.T.A. met recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham, Fullford Harbor. A balance of $254.22 was noted. Mrs. J. H. Hardwicke was named convener of a banquet to be held in honor of the graduating class in Mahon Hall, June 8. Following the meeting, presided over by Mrs. L. D. Goodman, refreshments were served.

About the authenticity of the tartans, I couldn't tell ye, but all I do know is that they're a merry addition to a bedroom setting. Also $3.25, by the way.

Cowboys roam the Western plains 'neath cloudless skies... on the lampshades designed for the children's room. Other parchment shades have been designed with figures of Bo Peep, that timid fairybook lass, purry kittens, and ships that sail the high seas. For the small shades, 59 cents, and a little larger, 79 pennies.

Junior can call himself "Ukelele Uke" with a snappy red plastic instrument, to serve as a pencil case. In the depths of rubber-band-strung "uke" he'll find three pencils and a ruler. Popular among the kindergarten set, they tell me. To buy such an instrument you'll need 29 pennies.

While Junior still enjoys coloring everything from picture books to the back fence, there's a set of plastic and wax crayons selling in sets of five, for 6 pennies.

Atop each crayon is a miniature rabbit or "puppy tail." Is there a birthday party scheduled very soon, Mom? There is? Then, I'll tell you about the very new and beautifully made paper plates. They've been de-sept a smooth surface. For eight, six-inch plates, 29 cents, and the larger 8 inches, the same price.

MARY HAWORTH

Mother Aghast; Good-Looking Son To Marry Woman, Plain, Much Older

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My son Bruce, who is 25 years old, thinks he is in love with a girl who is 38 years old. We run a hotel, and a year ago this woman—I'll call her Evelyn—spent her vacation at our place. I noticed that my son spent more and more time in her company. Now he tells me that he intends to marry her, and I am stunned.

Please don't think I am one of those mothers who don't want their sons to marry. But what happiness could my son possibly find with a girl almost twice his age? My son is tall, good looking and educated, while this girl is short, plain looking and has little education. She cannot carry on a simple conversation. While she was staying here, I noticed she didn't mix with the other people or indulge in any sports. She just sat, or went for a walk.

Thank you for any advice you can give me. I shall be watching your column for an answer; and I hope it will be soon.

DAZZLED VIEW OF HER DARLING

DEAR K.R.: It occurs to me that you have a completely false picture of your son's personality. You react to him with blindly partisan infatuation, and consider him the ideal catch from any woman's viewpoint. Probably the representative attractive eligible girls don't see him in that light at all; but rather as a mama's boy, who somehow rings hollow in the role of man. They probably feel no interest in him as a potential lover, sensing in him some lack of self-confidence, independence, virility, etc., and very likely there is some basis for the inference.

It is significant that Bruce finds emotional sanctuary, sufficient for him, in the company of a quiet, unassuming older woman whose society he could claim without competitive struggle. Her lack of striving; her almost wordless simplicity, no doubt seem divinely soothing to him, as a change from your strenuous executive temperament, which has dominated him thus far—and the pressure of which unconsciously spurs him to seek qualities equally strong, but undemanding, in a protective life-companion.

The urgent problem confronting you is how to bring yourself up short, so that you won't do additional damage to Bruce. If he proceeds to marry Evelyn, that's better than letting you break it up—an interference that, if successful, would simply leave him more gutless yet. All things considered, my advice is—let their relationship alone. You've got plenty of work to do on yourself.—M.H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Times.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Try A Friendly Attitude To Sweep Away Loneliness

I had a nice human interest experience the other day. I was on a tight schedule and had just finished an appointment on 34th Street in New York City. My next appointment was around 50th Street, about 10 minutes later. When I came out of the 34th Street building it was raining hard and a taxi seemed impossible. So I started walking without the blessing of an umbrella because I always think the sun is going to shine, being of an optimistic nature.

I had walked about one block when the most attractive woman said to me, "Come on and get under my umbrella." Thank you very much. How far are you going? I asked. She replied, "Just a few blocks uptown."

Then she continued, "I have been looking at you for a block now and was dying to ask you where you had your hair fixed. I just couldn't stand to see a good hairdo ruined by the rain. Anyway, you looked friendly."

I am not bragging about me but about human nature. I told her where I had the crowning trouble fixed and we parted with mutual good feelings. Then I bought my favorite newspaper and held it over my head until I got a cab.

I wondered why this sort of thing is always happening to me. It certainly is not because I have a special magnetic personality or because I am good looking. You can mark those off, believe me. I think it is because I am just naturally as friendly as a pup toward life and toward people.

I sometimes wonder if all of the lonely people and all of the self-conscious people would forget their loneliness and their self-consciousness and their troubles for a short time, whether they might not find the whole wide world quite friendly.

Most of the world is as lonely or as self-conscious as you are, or more so. The world would be awfully happy to have you wave at it in a friendly fashion. It would take you to its heart, and bless you!

Forget yourself and think in terms of the great sweep of life—where every day is sheer bonus, and life is lovely.

First Baptist C.G.I.T. Honors Mothers, Friends

First Baptist C.G.I.T. entertained their mothers, invited guests and friends, Monday evening, when a program of music, recitations and skits was presented.

Martha Worthy, C.G.I.T. president, opened the program with the girls uniting in their C.G.I.T. purpose and theme hymn, and gave a welcome to mothers and others present. Among those taking part were Mrs. J. Bell, recitations; Martha Worthy and Marilyn Eaton, pianoforte duo; Heather Manson, pianoforte solo; Jean Easter, recitation.

Mrs. A. Grodte led the service when the girls affiliated with the First Baptist Women's Union, Miss Trudy Sweetman delivered the message to the graduates. Girls' choral group of First Baptist Church was directed by Mr. G. E. Bower. The three graduates, Jean Easter, Beth Bingham and Blanche Brown, told of experiences at provincial graduation service in Vancouver.

The C.G.I.T. presented two skits, "The Mutilated Uniform" and "The Web of Life."

Tea In Douglas Room

Mabel Burnett Circle will hold a tea in the Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Company, June 14, from 2.30 to 4.30. Mrs. J. Smith is general convener and has arranged for home cooking and novelty stalls.

At their recent meeting held at home of Mrs. J. Huntley, Pembroke Street, letters of thanks were received for food parcels sent to adopted families overseas and donations to Cancer Fund.

A donation of $20 was voted for Salvation Army Drive. Hostess was assisted by Mesdames H. Gibson and F. Clarke.

Women Active In Earliest Days Of Vic High School

Mrs. Henry Esson Young.

Oldest Living Woman Teacher

An active life, steeped in the early history of this province, has given many vivid memories to Mrs. Henry Esson Young, oldest living member of Victoria High School's early teaching staff. She served at the first high school in the 1890's and later in the new high school—now Central Junior High School—until her marriage to Dr. Young in 1904.

Mrs. Young came to Victoria as a youthful graduate of McGill University, with a year's experience in teaching, in Toronto.

"It is the kindness of the teaching staff here and of my students that remains a sweet memory," she tells you, "especially during a period of illness not long after my arrival when I suffered an attack of pneumonia. My room at the Jubilee Hospital was filled with flowers sent from teachers and students."

"Why, I even had a bouquet of magnificent carnations sent to me by a student, whose father had brought them from Seattle!"

"I entered Victoria High School in 1897 when the small brick building between the Boys' and Girls' Central School had four rooms," she reminisces. "The principal was the late E. B. Paul. Among the teachers who later joined the staff was the late S. J. Willis."

"When we moved into the new high school we found numbers were increasing so rapidly—150 to 200 students enrolled—that more sports activity was needed."

"I had heard of the success of grass hockey for girls in England, and I was inspired to organize a team here. Soon the girls were excellent players and I was happy to play fullback position on the team. My being on the team gave mothers of team members confidence to permit them to travel to Vancouver, where we played many games."

This bright-eyed woman, with silken white hair and a smile that warms her every word, can also reminisce of the day she spent traveling alone throughout the province in search of material for her book on the geography of British Columbia.

"But that is another story!" she tells you quickly.

Right now she is looking forward expectantly to 75th anniversary celebrations of Victoria High School commencing Friday, when she will be reunited with old friends.

In recalling the building of the present Victoria High School Mrs. Young explained with a laugh, "You know, when the first plans were made for the new school, there was a great fuss and talk of 'such extravagance' and 'my heavens, what will they do with all that space.' But it wasn't long before every room was filled."

The pioneer teacher, wife of the late Dr. Henry Esson Young, who for many years was M.L.A. for Atlin, and later Minister of Education for this province, is mother of five children. She still lives in her treasure-filled Colonial-styled home on Oliver Street.

Mrs. Lucretia Horton Hardie.

Graduate Of The First Class

A dignified lady, 85 years of age, will be among Victorians taking part in the 75th anniversary of Victoria High School.

She is Mrs. Lucretia Horton Hardie, only living member of the first graduating class from the first two-room log school.

During her four years at the school Mrs. Hardie says she took a general course which "only taught me the sensible things."

Recalling those days Mrs. Hardie said, "I graduated in 1882 at the age of 16, and as there was no normal school, I like most of my classmates, went right out and taught school."

During her 12 years of teaching Mrs. Hardie taught at Girls' Central, Boys' Central, Spring Ridge, Rock Bay and South Park Schools.

Accounting for the excellent training the first graduating class received, she said, "We had two very fine teachers, J. H. McLaughlin and R. Offerhaus. When we left high school we knew something."

"In the Victoria High School of my day," Mrs. Hardie explained with a reminiscent look in her eyes, "There were no lights. When it got dark we just had to go home. The only heat came from a stove."

In contrast to graduations of today Mrs. Hardie pointed out that there was "no ceremony in 1882," and that they "just passed along to the next step in life without any festivity."

Also different from the present day is the fact that no school colors had been established and the school pin was not introduced.

Victoria has always been the home of this active woman. She was born here, married here, and claims, "I never wanted to live anywhere else."

Her daughter, Mrs. V. S. Godfrey, also a Victoria woman, was a student at the high school.

Just recently Mrs. Hardie was awarded a citation by the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons for 50 years' service.

She is very interested in church work, is a past regent of an L.O.O.F.E. chapter, a life member of the Order and of the Red Cross. For 14 years she was president of the Victoria Literary Society.

When asked if The Times photographer could take her picture, Mrs. Hardie said, "Could he please come early in the afternoon? Today is my bridge day."

Mrs. Hardie still meets her old friends regularly for bridge.

FUGITIVE ISLE SINKS AGAIN

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's disappearing island has vanished again, a Colonial Office report said Wednesday night. Falcon Island, one of the Tonga group, has pulled the fade-out three times since it was discovered in 1877. Now it's gone again. It was last seen in 1949.

Movie Theatres 'Revolt' At New Quebec Tax Rule

Refuse To Collect From Patrons; Deadlock Means Saving To Public; Courts Will Decide

QUEBEC (CP)—They're still fighting here over a municipal amusement tax imposed a month ago. So far, the town's 13 theatres haven't collected 1 cent of the tax for the city.

The city hasn't been able to force the operators to collect the tax or shut down their movie houses.

Do your own tax collecting, the theatre operators said. But the city declined.

So, movie-goers have been getting their entertainment right along without paying the new tax—cents on tickets worth less than $1 and 10 cents on tickets worth $1 or more.

It looks, too, like film fans won't pay the tax for a while because the main question—is the tax legal—has been put to the law courts by the operators.

The squabble started April 18 when the city made known it planned to impose $1,500,000 in new taxes to make up a 1951-52 deficit.

The amusement tax was one of six new taxes.

Quebecers, who were getting along on a relatively small budget for a city of 300,000, gave the new $8,720,000 budget a bristling reception.

Landlords, tenants, business associations protested, published advertisements, passed resolutions asked for ouster of the city council. Labor threatened a 24-hour strike.

Harassed city authorities backedtracked, slashed off three of the proposed taxes and reduced one. But the amusement tax was kept.

The operators decided not to collect the tax.

Approve Pension Plan

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

Br-r-r-r! That water really was cold.

The worst is never quite so bad. But something worse may still be had. Peter Rabbit.

There is more than one kind of deep water. You didn't know that? Well, there is a kind of deep water which isn't water at all. When people are in great trouble they are sometimes said to be in deep water.

Peter Rabbit was in deep water. In fact he was in both kinds of deep water. He was in trouble, very great trouble. And he was in real water that was deep, and that water was cold. Yes, sir, that water was cold.

Running away from Gray Fox he had slipped into a deep pool in Laughing Brook. By stretching his long hind legs down as far as possible he could touch bottom and thus keep his wobbly little nose above water, so that he could breathe. Being in that cold water was trouble enough, but to make it worse Gray Fox was standing on the bank only a few feet away.

He was looking this way and that way for Peter. But he didn't look the right way. Or if he did he just didn't see that wobbly little nose just above the surface and wobbling more than ever because it was so cold.

You know folks usually see what they are looking for, and Gray Fox was looking for a whole Rabbit, not just a wobbly little nose.

Br-r-r-r! That water really was cold. You see Peter doesn't have a waterproof coat such as Jerry Muskrat, and Billy Mink, and Little Joe Otter, and Paddy the Beaver wear. Under their waterproof coats they wear thick warm coats and so they can swim and play about in icy-cold water without being cold at all. Br-r-r! Peter shivered. Would Gray Fox never go away? Br-r-r-r! If he didn't go soon Peter was sure he would just have to swim ashore and then Gray Fox would be sure to catch him.

Gray Fox looked and looked and looked all about without moving away from where he had stopped. After awhile he began to run about on the bank, sniffing along the ground with his wonderful nose! He was so near that had Peter's ears been above water he would have heard some of those sniffs. I am sure that if he had he would have shivered more than he was shivering now. You know right can make one shiver just as much as cold can. That's funny, isn't it?

Gray Fox disappeared among the bushes. Peter began to hope that perhaps in a minute he could get out of that deep cold water. Just as he was about ready to try it Gray Fox popped out of the bushes again. Peter's heart sank. Br-r-r-r! He was colder than ever. Gray Fox crossed Laughing Brook to the other bank. He ran a little way along the bank up Laughing Brook.

He still had his nose to the ground and was sniffing and

PRIEST'S PLEA WINS

Poised For Death Leap Youth Climbs Back In

BOSTON (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest—talking calmly and soothingly—last night induced a youth to abandon plans to leap from a ninth-floor ledge to a downtown hotel.

For more than 90 minutes 19-year-old Louis Turine was poised to jump as awestruck hundreds crowded the street outside the Hotel Touraine, at one of Boston's busiest intersections.

Before the priest succeeded in talking him out of his desperate plan, several policemen and a girl identified only as his friend pleaded with him to come back into a room.

Rev. Joseph Curran, of St. Stephen's Church, Back Bay, went to the room and everyone else left. For several minutes Father Curran talked through the open window.

Turine, who had been telling police someone had "taken my girl from me," agreed to come into the room. As he put his leg over the window sill, a policeman entered the room.

The youth went back to his precarious perch and for a time refused to listen to further inducements.

The tense drama was climaxed with Father Curran's success when the youth finally entered the room and submitted to police.

$10,000 For Eye

TORONTO (CP)—An $18,000 award for damages was made yesterday to 10-year-old Douglas Turnbull, when a Supreme Court jury under Mr. Justice G. A. Gale found that a permanent eye injury will affect his reading. The award will be held by the court until the boy reaches 21. He was hit a year ago by a car driven by Samuel Gatto, who, police said, was driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

VICTORIAN SPRING

by Cecil Maiden

XCVIII

Her face broke into a smile, and the smile became a low and confident laugh.

"He was a good actor, wasn't he?"

"Caroline!"

"We had a lot of trouble with the uniform. More than with the letter which he took to the prison for you. But at any rate, we appear to have been successful."

He was finding it difficult to adjust his mind to the situation.

"That . . . that officer who brought me . . ."

"Just a friend. A new one—recently arrived from England." He shook his head, still half believing. She went on. "He offered to be very obliging. I took him at his word."

This was a different Caroline. No longer the quiet and withdrawn girl of the grey dress that he had met in the Alhambra Room. No longer the spitfire of the birthday ball. This was a challenging Caroline, willing to expose her own tricks and to laugh at them. A provocative Caroline, very sure of herself—and apparently very sure of him.

Yet almost as he began to grasp the fact that he was, for the moment, a free man, so did he glimpse some new and specified obligation confronting him.

Neither of them moved any closer to each other.

"Why did you do this, Caroline?"

She looked at him for a second or so from under the brim of her hat before replying. "I could invent so many pretty answers to that. The real one could sound pretty, too—if you choose to look at it that way."

"And what is the real one?"

"Life in our house is sometimes very dull. I've always felt that I should do quite well on the stage—and there are others who think so too, including Mr. Dukes."

"Mr. Dukes?"

"You haven't forgotten? One of the owners of the Colonial Theatre." She watched for any sign of agitation at the reminder.

"I remember," he said quietly. Mr. Dukes, however, was not enthusiastic that I should leave Victoria."

"I can well understand that."

"But if I'm to make a career for myself, I shall have to go either to San Francisco or to New York."

"Caroline, what has this to do with . . .?"

"With you? Since my family would never give their agreement to such a step, I will have to go without it. I shall have to go, in other words, as if I were escaping. That puts us on the same level, doesn't it?"

He drew a sharp breath, seeing at last her purpose.

She went on, her voice still quiet and controlled.

"It would be safer for me, and perhaps pleasanter, if I had an escort."

So that was her bargain. He could but dimly measure, as he met the smiling challenge in her eyes and ambition and the greed behind it. Yet again he felt, as he watched her, the same physical urge the seemed inevitably to possess him when he was near to her.

She had received him in one of the St. Nicholas Hotel's bedrooms. He could—and he knew this as he looked at her—take her warm beauty into his arms . . . feel all her body's promise . . . wake the sleeping fierceness . . .

He took a short step towards her. His eyes, alive and awake now as they had not been since his imprisonment, fell from her hair to her slightly parted lips, then to the soft curve of her breasts.

And suddenly, in the crimson of her bodice, he saw a brooch.

It was a very different kind of brooch. It was larger, richer, more flamboyant. But he closed his eyes, and inevitably saw in its place the cameo that even now lay in his pocket.

And with his eyes closed, the two brooches, and the faces of Caroline and Letty, seemed inextricably mingled. Then the face of Letty, having neither the ardor nor the danger of Caroline's; neither the adventure nor the challenge; looked calmly out, as through a fire, at him. And the eyes were lit with a womanhood that Caroline would never know; the lips touched by a smile that was not just young, as Caroline's was young, but young-and-old together, with an understanding wide enough to cover all the years ahead, rich enough to give their children—her children and his—a comfort and a love that Caroline could not begin to understand.

He shook his head quickly, as from a dream.

The situation leapt into a clear perspective. And in that new perspective he saw afresh its urgency.

Chinese Starving

Furthermore, one can have some varicose veins fixed and then develop new ones. But even with this hazard they ought not to be neglected, especially because of the risk of ulcer formation and other evidences of poor circulation.

A word should also be said about the use of elastic stockings or bandages. These will not cure varicose veins but are still often advisable for special reasons or after an operation.

Varicose veins are not only unsightly but can lead to swelling of the feet and legs and to the formation of ulcers. They are common, too, perhaps partly because so many occupations involve standing for long periods.

A typical problem is posed by Mrs. L.H.B., who writes: "I have varicose veins and would like to have them fixed but want to know whether it would be dangerous. Also I want to go to work afterwards but the job requires standing."

The question of what to do about varicose veins is not always the easiest thing to answer. The first thing is to understand what they are. The veins of the legs carry blood back toward the heart. They are equipped with valves at intervals which prevent the blood from flowing backwards.

Sometimes, however, these valves break down and then the pressure on the walls of the veins, which are usually near the surface, are what are called varicose veins. The flow of blood inside them is also slowed.

It isn't possible to build new valves or to cause the veins to shrink. But on the favorable side these veins are not really necessary because veins farther inside the legs can carry the blood just as well.

This is the reason varicose veins can often be treated so successfully, either by cutting them out or tying them (surgery) or by injecting them with an irritating fluid which causes them to close up entirely. The choice of what method to use must, of course, be made by the surgeon though apparently in recent years surgery has become the more favored.

DON'T RUN RISK

Neither of these methods can really be described as dangerous. But it takes a while for the circulation to be entirely rerouted, so a job involving a lot of standing is not too good an idea for a while.

No Song-And-Dance For Rita: Princess Will Play It Serious

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA).—Excitively yours, Columbia and Rita Hayworth have decided that her come-back picture will be a straight drama—not a song-and-dance jamboree. Drama of her life with Al? Once zip-lipped about the breach with her wife, Jeff Chandler now admits that all attempts to bait the bird of marital peace have failed.

Wanda Hendrix is making no bones about telling people that she scooted to New York for "heartache" reasons when Audie Murphy married Pamela Archer. Debbie Reynolds and Carleton Carpenter are embarrassed over the whispers of a coming altar trek. Not true, they say. "Quo Vadis" has been snipped down to three hours running time.

Frances Ramsden, whose only film appearance was in Harold Lloyd's "Mad Wednesday," is in the throes of a divorce. Preston Sturges, with whom she was once linked, is introducing Sandy Melton, his newest acting discovery, as "the next Mrs. Sturges."

It's hush-hush, but M.G.M. has been negotiating for the movie rights to "South Pacific." The outcome may determine whether Ezio Pinza's contract is renewed. Now that M.G.M. has decided to use her voice in "Showboat," Ava Gardner is making no secret of who planted the melody in her vocal chords—composer-coach Phil Moore.

Ellen Drew, after starring in "Crossroads," a half hour TV film: "I gave me more chance to emote in 30 minutes than I've had in many a full-length feature."

Many Stars Have Trademark Robertson's Drawl To Stay

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP).—Dale Robertson is one Southerner who refuses to let Hollywood "Yankeeize" him.

The handsome young actor is actually a Southwesterner, hailing from Oklahoma City, Okla. But his accent is definitely south of the Mason-Dixon line. And it's going to stay that way, says he.

"Hollywood is a great place for advice," he drawled. "Everybody has his own idea about how to further your career, and the advice usually comes from people who never achieved anything themselves."

"They've all been telling me I should take lessons to get rid of my accent. They claim it will limit me in the parts I get. I say nuts to that. Sure, I could take a month or so of lessons and lose every trace of accent I ever had."

"But then what would I be? Just another actor. And tall, black-haired actors are $1 a gross in this town."

NEED-TRADE MARK

Robertson said he has figured out his stand by observing the successful actors in the movies. "All of them have accents of some kind," he said. "It's a trade mark for them; it makes them distinctive. Cary Grant has an accent. So does Randolph Scott. And where would Ronald Colman be without his accent?" Playing butlers, he guessed.

DAILY MIRROR SHOCKED

Says U.S. TV Kills Talk, Breeds Crime

LONDON (UP).—The Daily Mirror said today that the strip-tease is the only U.S. entertainment holding its own against television, and with it has come vice. The Mirror, which has the largest daily newspaper circulation in the world, carried a report on American television by its roving reporter, Noel Whitcomb, from Chicago.

Said Whitcomb: "It is difficult for England to comprehend exactly what sort of a hold television has on this country. It has effectively killed small talk in the bars. If you order a drink in too loud a voice these days, you'll get a chorus of shushes. Everybody is sitting in silence, eyes glued to the ball game or boxing match. The strip-tease is the only type of show holding its own against the tidal wave of television. Churches and states authorities are naturally pretty worried about this re-blossoming of strip in such quantity. But all they can do in most places is to try to clean up the vice it brings with it. 'This vice comes in many

Redcap Saves Crosby After Refused Room

VANCOUVER (CP).—A bellhop solved Bing Crosby's troubles after he had been given the brush-off at a swank hotel here.

The room clerk didn't recognize groaner Crosby—dressed in a leather jacket and cheap dungarees—and told him no rooms were available. He recognized the door when the bellhop recognized him, heard his troubles and started him via the freight elevator to the seventh floor.

The redcap fixed things on his own, disregarding the night clerk, and soon had Bing and his producer, Bill Morrow, lodged in two rooms along with nine pieces of baggage and 18 pieces of clothing. Now, Crosby is on the hunt in the Gulf of Georgia for "some king-sized salmon and some vagrant cod."

Leading Coast Doctors Wind Up Convention Here

A scientific program brought an end to the 35th annual meetings of Pacific Coast Oto-Ophthalmological Society at the Empress Hotel at noon today, as 300 participating doctors and their wives from B.C. and six U.S. states left for their homes. Although most of the meeting was spent in discussion of advances in eye, ear, nose, and throat treatments, there was time for fishing, golf, sightseeing, and entertainment in the program.

Discussion leaders in today's session were Drs. M. J. Reeh, Thomas Talbot, and Leonard Christensen, Portland; H. E. Smith, Salt Lake City; M. W. Nugent, Los Angeles; Dudley Bell, Oakland; Edward Maunee and Raymond Michler, San Francisco; and James Powell, Stockton.

NON-JURY EXHIBITION

Young Artists Shine

By AUDREY S. D. JOHNSON

Annual non-jury exhibition of paintings at the Arts Centre, Broughton Street, has brought forth a large number of entries in a great variety of styles, subject-matter and degrees of technical attainment. The paintings will be on show for two weeks, ending June 9.

The show is sparked by the promising productions of some young artists and one or two examples of distinguished craftsmanship from experienced painters like Mrs. Deane Drummond, Mrs. E. Seely-Smith, Esme Davis, Will Menelaws and Miss H. V. Foster of Cobble Hill.

The last-named is especially well represented by a lovely floral-and-bird design, titled "Garden Tapestry." The only portrait is the work of Mr. Menelaws and Mrs. Davis has given the most interesting of several dogwood studies.

Great originality and a pleasing arrangement of color is apparent in two non-objective compositions by John Di Castri and "Death of a Plant" by Mrs. D. Williams.

G. K. Webb, with "Spring Sketches" No. 1 and 2, and Valerie Clarke with "Evening in Toronto," reveal particular promise and insight into their subjects.

An extraordinarily talented young artist, Ann Kipling, has two vigorous studies—"Yellow Colt" and "Morning Fantasy."

Camels, Planes Battle Locust Plague In Libya

CASTEL BENITO, Libya (UP)—Arabian camel drivers, reinforced by U.S. Air Force planes and British troops, are battling an invasion of mile-wide columns of desert-hatched locusts which threaten to wipe out Libya's agricultural economy.

Prompt action by a combined force using new and ancient techniques and equipment are believed to have "contained" the first assault of this biblical plague of the Middle East. Action centres in the desert south of the vast Tripolitanian oasis, which houses and feeds 75 per cent of the Libyan population.

The force of more than 300 men, using camels, jeeps, trucks and planes is continuing to scour 1,300 square miles of the trackless Sahara south of here for new or previously undetected hatches. Officials of the international desert locust survey of Nairobi, East Africa, describe the situation as "the worst locust threat since 1946."

"If they ever get out of hand, said W. R. MacDonald (Dunedin, New Zealand), the British district commissioner for Suqat Giumma, "they would strip every tree and every blade of grass in Tripolitania."

40 AREAS LOCATED

MacDonald, who is directing the combined force fighting the locusts, said 40 large hatching areas have been located.

"Some of the swarms are three to four miles long and nearly a mile wide," he said. "The trick is to locate and poison them before they reach maturity—the big fellows three inches long and with a wing-spread four inches wide. They fly then in clouds that literally darken the sky and destroy every living plant."

So far the swarms have been controlled before they reach that stage.

Flight "C" of the seventh air rescue squadron from the U.S. military air transport service field at Tripoli, has co-operated in the "spotting" of swarms in remote, trackless areas inaccessible to ground vehicles.

When the swarms are spotted, British Tommies strike out in trucks and jeeps, loaded with poisoned bran, along the desert track that leads nearest the site.

DRIVERS TAKE OVER
Arabian camel drivers take over then, loading their beasts with sacks of the poison which they scatter by hand just ahead of the advancing swarms of locusts.

"One of the toughest problems in control," MacDonald said, "is the Arab's fear that our poison bait will kill his few goats, his donkey or his camel."

"The old arsenic baits did just that. Now we use a new chemical, 'gamexine,' manufactured in Holland. We used movies, lectures and literature to try to convince the Arabs the new poison wouldn't kill their stock and so get their co-operation. Nothing worked."

A little psychology finally turned the trick. "I got a group of Arab leaders together, assured them the stuff wouldn't hurt their animals, then, to prove it, I ate a handful of it myself."

"I was sick as a dog for a week," MacDonald said. "But news of that sort of thing gets around in North Africa. Within a couple of days we had all the native camel drivers we needed for the job."

New Zealand Encourages Maoris To Share Society

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—The New Zealand Government is encouraging Maoris to take a wider share in every phase of society in the Dominion.

It considers the country's two races must eventually live on a basis of complete equality, not only legally, but virtually, exists at present, but in conditions and habits. Despite the rapid increase in the Maori population, it is believed that the future of the race does not lie in the villages, but in New Zealand as a whole.

To assist in the task of fitting Maoris to live in a western civilization, a policy of advice and guidance through tribal committees and welfare workers has been fostered under an act passed shortly after the war. Reports show that this policy is beginning to pay dividends in the form of a more stable Maori society and economy.

DISCIPLINE BETTER

Some 89 tribal committees have been formed throughout the country in an effort to reinforce the power of the chiefs and the old tribal discipline which showed signs of collapsing with the growth of European ways among the Maoris. These committees have considerable disciplinary powers to act in cases which do not call for police interference. It is planned to increase further the powers of Maori wardens appointed by the committees to enable them to keep law and order in their areas.

A major problem has been control of the use of liquor by Maoris. Until recently, they were under various restrictions in obtaining liquor that did not apply to Europeans. Most of these restraints were removed a few years ago. In some areas the Maoris have abused their new-found freedom and drunken orgies have become common in the villages.

The Government has been encouraged by the general reception of the concessions by the bulk of the Maori race, however, and it does not plan to reimpose the restrictions. It believes reinforcing of the authority of the tribal committees in the less progressive districts will enable them to measure up to their responsibilities.

About half the welfare workers appointed by the act are women, as particular attention is being given to educating the Maori women in modern hygiene and child welfare methods. The women have formed welfare leagues in most districts and many Maori groups have joined national societies which aim at developing and improving the home life of the community. This work of linking Maori women with the modern outlook on life in the home is already resulting in a steady improvement in conditions in Maori homes.

Multi-Lingual Bible Appeal

MONTREAL (CP)—Many persons who have used the entrance corridor to St. James United Church in midtown Montreal as a shelter from wind and rain, recently have noticed a glass case set up in the interior.

Underneath the glass are three Bibles: one in English, another in French, the third in Yiddish. The unusual display has attracted considerable attention because of the combination of the languages.

There have been many queries as to the "why" of the display. The answer is simply that St. James Church and its minister, Rev. Dr. T. E. McLennan, think that giving the passerby an opportunity to read a page of Scripture does a lot of good.

All three Bibles are opened at the same page. The pages are usually turned twice weekly.

Who knows whether the casual glance at the open Bible page might give a man or a woman the "Spiritual Life" that turns a puzzled existence into a positive life?

Forestry Yield Policy Need Seen In B.C.

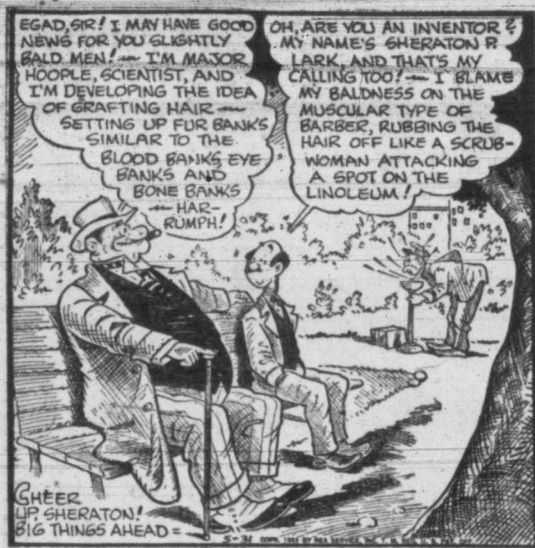

Need of a sustained-yield forestry policy in British Columbia and its early application was voiced today at the Rotary Club luncheon in the Empress Hotel by Eric Druce, forester in charge of public relations and education for the B.C. Forest Service.

Mr. Druce discussed forest management licenses, a contribution to the sustained yield policy, and the tree-farm development begun this year which is a forest management plan "in miniature."

He also reviewed the history and geography of work done by the service and use of logged-over land with emphasis on regeneration and reforestation.
